Gen. Westmoreland Sees Allies Winning

4 U.S. Planes Downed

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP)—Gen. William C. Westmoreland said Saturday he believed the allies were winning the war in Viet Nam.

The U.S. commander, never more openly optimistic, made the statement on a day when his military spokesman announced the loss of four American planes over North Viet Nam but reported winning blows against the Communists at sea and on the ground.

"Six months ago," Westmoreland told reporters, "I stated that we had not yet started to win, but certainly at that time we had stopped losing."

"Since then we have a string of victories to our credit. We have increased our forces and military power, and we have gained in effectiveness."

The four-star commander went on to say that "we have a long way to go," but he agreed with a newsmen's remark that "we have now begun to win."

To that remark, phrased as a question, he said "Yes."

In a rare air-sea engagement, Navy planes from the aircraft carriers Constellation and Hancock sank three North Vietnamese torpedo boats Friday night, 38 miles out in the Gulf of Tonkin.

The boats were headed at high speed on what the Navy termed an attack course against the U.S. guided-missile destroyer Coontz, patrolling off the North Viet Nam coast.

The two carriers, on station in the gulf, launched 14 planes to engage the torpedo boats. The navy said the boats had fired on the planes and the jet fighters bombers sank the three boats with rockets and bombs. Destroyers picked up 19 North Vietnamese sailors from the torpedo boats, and at last report they were being held aboard the Coontz. Though a torpedo boat normally carries 12 or 15 men, there was no immediate word of how many might have been lost with their craft.

Seizure of the 19 raised a question of what disposition would be made of them. Technically, the United States is not at war with North Viet Nam, and captives are classified as detainees rather than as prisoners of war.

A similar torpedo boat incident Aug. 2, 1964, marked the start of stepped-up U.S. involvement in Viet Nam. The U.S. destroyer

Maddox fired on three North Vietnamese torpedo boats that were believed making a torpedo run on it. One torpedo boat was reported sunk, and the other two fled.

Three days after this incident, the United States staged its first aid raid over North Viet Nam, and pilots claimed they had sunk 15 torpedo boats and 9 gunboats in coastal waters.

The loss of four U.S. warplanes over North Viet Nam Friday raised to 277 the number announced lost to enemy action since the United States started the current air campaign Feb. 7, 1965.

It was the second highest toll of U.S. planes for a single day. The greatest single day's loss was five planes—all F105s.

Japan May Warn Of Opposition To U.S. Policies

KYOTO, Japan (AP)—Japan may warn the United States at trade talks here this week that leftist opposition to the Vietnamese conflict could compromise American military installations in this country, informed sources said Saturday.

The Vietnamese issue and relations with Communist China are expected to dominate the talks, officially billed as the annual meeting of the U.S.-Japan Committee on Trade and Economic Affairs.

Top Cabinet officials of both countries, including Secretary of State Dean Rusk and Japanese Foreign Minister Etsusaburo Shima, will attend the three-day meeting, opening Tuesday.

The Japanese government, pressed by a strong leftist opposition, may urge the United States to use restraint in Viet Nam.

The Japanese also are known to be seeking clarification of recent U.S. statements indicating changes in American policy toward Communist China.

Tokyo already has said it would inform the Americans it plans to increase trade with Peking.

During the first third of this year Japanese trade with mainland China amounted to some $200 million, and total trade for 1966 could reach $700 million.

The Japanese feel a major development of the conference could come in a tacit American approval of increased trade with Red China. Some sources say such an agreement could amount to a new step in Washington's China policy of "containment without isolation."

Of the four planes, the pilot of one bailed out at sea and was rescued. He was Capt. Lew W. Shattuck, 33, of Vancouver, Wash. The other three are listed as missing.

In another air mishap, over South Viet Nam, an F4C Phantom and a light observation plane collided in the air Saturday.

Challengers Batting Zero In Primaries

WASHINGTON (AP)—Challengers trying to wrest party congressional nominations from incumbent House members have a zero batting average in the primaries so far this year.

Three congressmen seeking re-election have been sidelined in the primaries, but they were forced by the fortunes of redistricting to run against other incumbents.

No challenger springing up from the ranks has been successful.

On the unofficial returns from New York's primary, it appeared that Rep. Leonard Farberstein, Democrat, might have gone down, caught by the side effects of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy's foray against Tammany Hall over the nomination of a surrogate judge.

Farberstein, a tammany man in Congress, trailed City Councilman Theodore Weiss by 61 votes out of about 35,000 in the unofficial tally.

But the Board of Elections, after the official tally, pronounced Farberstein the winner by 151 votes.

Weiss campaigned with a call for an immediate cease-fire and peace negotiations in Viet Nam. Farberstein supported the administration's course of action in the war.

But the Viet Nam issue appears to have been of less importance than the fact that Weiss is a Reform Democrat.

Weiss benefited from Kennedy's rallying of Reform Democrats and their allies to get out the votes and nominate Supreme Court Justice Samuel J. Silverman for surrogate judge.

At this halfway point of the year, the major parties have made their nominations for 267 of the 435 House seats, to be filled in next fall's election.

The only casualties among incumbents asking renomination were two Democrats and a Republican thrown into the day near Da Nang. The observation plane crashed, and the pilot was killed. The F4C was damaged but reached base safely at Da Nang.

Medicare Program Picks Up

CHICAGO (AP)—The Medicare program is picking up steam with the nation's doctors free—if they choose—to charge whatever they wish for their services and to require elderly patients to handle the paperwork in seeking reimbursement from the government.

The American Medical Association, with 214,000 members, strongly urged doctors at their annual convention just ended to bill Medicare patients directly, rather than collect their fees from the government.

Consideration of Medicare and its ramifications was the highlight of the week-long convention attended by 15,000 doctors.

The AMA's House of Delegates, its policy-making body, overruled an AMA Advisory Committee when it adopted without dissent recommendations of the Board of Trustees and delegations from Florida, Iowa and Illinois.

The final action put the AMA on record as calling on "each and every member of this association" to submit his bill directly to the patient, rather than choose the assignment method.

Both methods are permissible under the Medicare act.

But the AMA House of Delegates refused to take a stand on the issue at a special convention in October, stating: "The American Medical Association opposes any program of dictation, interference, or coercion, whether direct or indirect, affecting the freedom of choice of the physician to determine for himself the extent and manner of participation or financial arrangement under which he shall provide medical care to patients under Public Law 89-97."

In opposing an all-out AMA stand in favor of direct billing, the Reference Committee on Insurance and Medical Service contended such action would be "inconsistent."

Direct Billing

The AMA not only came out for direct billing by all doctors, but adopted a Florida delegation resolution recommending that no special review or mediation committees be set up in hospitals solely to handle Medicare cases. It recommended that the standard mediation or review mechanism of the county medical society be utilized.

Under direct billing, the doctor sends his bill to the patient and, after the patient has paid $50 in doctor bills within a year, he can seek reimbursement.

France Detonates A-Bomb In Pacific

PARIS (AP)—France exploded an atomic bomb from a tower above a lagoon in the South Pacific on Saturday and Defense Minister Pierre Messmer predicted that within three years his country would have an arsenal of nuclear-tipped missiles.

The explosion, one of a series designed to give France the hydrogen bomb as soon as possible, touched off expressions of regret from Britain and the United States. Those two countries have renounced nuclear tests in the atmosphere.

So has the Soviet Union, but Moscow, where President Charles de Gaulle completed a state visit Friday, kept silent.

Messmer said French Mirage IV bombers already carry atomic bombs but "our second generation of atomic weapons is based on devices to be carried by missiles—ground to ground or sea to ground."

"Great Progress"

"We have made very great progress in the construction of missiles, and this progress is such that today we can say our first missile capable of transporting a nuclear warhead will be operational in 1969."

Saturday's test—the first in the South Pacific since the United States ended its explosions at Bikini—took place at Mururoa in the islands of French Polynesia.

The yield of the explosion was not revealed. A French Defense Department spokesman said only that its power was in "the tactical range."

In recent weeks French officials have been saying the device would pack a wallop of less than 100 kilotons, about five times the power of the U.S. atomic bombs dropped on Hiroshima and Nagasaki.

Traffic Toll Climbs

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Midnight EDT: Traffic 171, boating 3, drowning 27. Total 211.

The nation's traffic death toll climbed steadily Saturday, the first full day of the long Independence Day weekend.

The National Safety Council noted that the count was moving upward at about the same rate as last year. The eventual total on that occasion was 551, a record for a three-day celebration of American independence.

Hot, humid weather—traditional on the Fourth of July—covered much of the nation. Some areas had rain that left a treacherous surface on highways.

Council statisticians figured most of the 91 million motor vehicles in the United States would be in motion at one time or another during the three-day weekend and would run up a total of 9.5 billion miles.

Most of the accidents cost one life or two.

But four persons were killed Saturday when a small bus collided with a freight train near Rockford, Ill., 30 miles southwest of Chicago. The victims were in the bus.

The council estimated in advance that between 510 and 610 men, women and children might lose their lives in traffic accidents in the period that began at 6 p.m. local time Friday and will end at midnight Monday.

To establish a basis for comparison with motoring performance during a nonholiday period of the same length, The Associated Press made a survey of motor vehicle fatalities between 6 p.m. Friday, June 17 and midnight Monday, June 20. They totaled 383.

The record traffic toll for any Independence Day period was set during a four-day celebration in 1963. It was 557.

The record traffic death tally for any holiday period was set during the three-day observance of Christmas last year. It was 720.

The lowest traffic toll for any three-day observance of Independence Day since World War II was 255, counted in 1947.

The two previous holidays this year set records in traffic deaths for observances of any length for those holidays—564 for the New Year celebration and 542 for the Memorial Day observance. Both ran three days.

SPRINGFIELD BOY DROWNS

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—David Schaeffer, 6, drowned Saturday afternoon in Lake Springfield where he had gone with his mother, Patricia, to swim.

Mrs. Schaeffer told authorities she was in a bath house putting on her swim suit when David disappeared. The body was found in 30 feet of water.

Javits Says GOP Has Failed To Lock Door On Extremism

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Jacob K. Javits, R-N.Y., said Saturday Republicans had failed to "lock the door against extremism," and Democratic National Chairman John M. Bailey agreed.

Javits said moderate and progressive Republicans "have yet to demonstrate they have the determination" to wrest party control from the conservatives who nominated Barry Goldwater for president in 1964.

"The first thing... Republicans must realize as they point toward the 1968 presidential election is that it can happen again—it can be 1964 all over again," Javits said in a statement accompanying the updating of a book, "Order Of Battle," he wrote after the 1964 defeat.

Bailey said in an interview that it already is happening all over again. He pointed to the defeat of a Javits-backed candidate, moderate William J. Casey, for the Republican congressional nomination in the 3rd New York Dist. Casey was beaten by Steven B. Derouanian, a strong Goldwater supporter who lost his House seat in 1964.

"I think the primary results there and elsewhere have proved that the Republican party has not changed much," Bailey said. "They haven't moved far from 1964."

Goldwater himself said Derouanian's nomination is proof that "the main stream of the Republican party is, as it always has been, common-sense conservatism."

Javits said the "danger of a repeat performance persists," adding: "The ambitions of the ultra conservatives who took over the party in 1964 are undiminished. The party's true conservatives shy away from a true confrontation with the extremists, and the Republican moderates and progressives still fail to act as if they had a unified sense of purpose."

Javits said GOP National Chairman Ray Bliss has had to "move ever so slowly in bringing about reforms—much slower than desirable when a party is so far behind numerically in Congress, in the state legislatures and in membership."

What it adds up to, Javits said, is "that the Republican party since 1964 has been moving one step backward for every step forward."

He said that conceivably it could win in 1968 by standing on the sidelines and waiting for a break.

Report Very Few Civilians Killed In N. Viet Raid

WASHINGTON (AP)—No more than one or two civilians—and perhaps none—were killed in Wednesday's bombing of oil targets at Hanoi and Haiphong, according to intelligence estimates given out by administration sources Saturday.

This word on the remarkably low civilian casualty count from the air strikes adjoining heavily populated centers is based on both aerial photographs and information from sources inside the North Vietnamese capital.

The administration officials did not disclose who was supplying information from Hanoi. A number of countries have diplomatic missions there, travelers come out from time to time, and, of course, there could be spies there.

Accurate Job

The finding that the bombing was, as administration informants put it, exceedingly accurate and a superb job comes as highly welcome to President Johnson's advisers amid criticism of the air strike that has come from abroad and at home.

The U.S. government has maintained that its air war on North Viet Nam is aimed at military targets and avoids as much as possible hurting civilians.

Further in this vein, the administration authorities said Saturday that food in North Viet Nam was not a military target as it is in some Viet Cong-controlled areas in South Viet Nam.

Red propaganda has accused U.S. planes of striking irrigation dikes important for farming in North Viet Nam.

Denying this, the U.S. officials said that while food supplies in South Viet Nam used directly by Communist forces there are subject to destruction, the agriculture in the north feeds the entire population and therefore is not a U.S. target. Nor are the American planes trying to destroy the general economic base of North Viet Nam by hitting industrial facilities, they said.

South Vietnamese Premier Nguyen Cao Ky Saturday portrayed the bombing of the north as a factor which could cause an overthrow of Hanoi's Ho Chi Minh regime.

Among members of the commission, in addition to Marshall, are John A. McCone, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency; Oveta Culp Hobby, president and editor of The Houston Post and former secretary of welfare; Gen. David M. Shoup, former commander of the Marine Corps; and Kingman Brewster, president of Yale University.

Moyers reported that Johnson for some time had been reviewing with administration officials the public discussion and debate about the draft. Moyers added this had led to Johnson's decision to form the commission.

Three of the commission members are Negroes.

Moyers told newsmen that White House press headquarters in San Antonio:

"The President is responding the commission with the responsibility of considering the past, present and future functioning of the Selective Service System in the light of the following factors:

1. Fairness to all citizens.

2. The nation's military manpower requirements.

3. Reducing uncertainty and interference with individual careers and education.

4. Social, economic and employment conditions and goals.

Guantanamo Base Strange Fortress For U.S. Troops

EDITOR'S NOTE—Whenever Fidel Castro wants to create a little crisis, there's a natural target—the U.S. Naval Base on Guantanamo Bay. There the Navy sits, and there it means to stay, and the result is a strange mixture of peacetime living and wariness. An AP military affairs writer, fresh from a visit, provides an intriguing close-up.

By FRED S. HOFFMAN
AP Military Writer

GUANTANAMO BAY, Cuba (AP)—This American enclave is a peculiar mixture of fortress and suburbia.

Out on the fence line, rifle-bearing Marines stand round-the-clock vigil, studying the silent Cuban hills and fortifications for signs of trouble.

Batteries of howitzers point their muzzles toward Fidel Castro's Cuba.

A couple of miles inside the zigzagging entrenchments wives of Navy men park their babies in a play pen while they shop at the commissary.

Women do their chores in comfortable, one-story frame homes set among blood-red and purple flowers and palm trees.

The 8,000 inhabitants of this great naval base are aware of hostile Cubans on the other side of the 17.4-mile fence.

There are occasional incidents, but nobody seems very much worried that the Cuban Communists will try to take over the base.

The relaxed atmosphere can be summed up in a remark to visiting newsmen by Rear Adm. Earl R. Crawford, who commands Guantanamo:

"We certainly sanction no acts that are going to antagonize the people on the other side of the fence."

"I think we'd be a little silly if we tried to break out and take this end of Cuba."

And, conversely, Navy Capt. Ray Gosson, Crawford's chief of staff, said of the Cubans: "We do not think they intend to attack."

Nonetheless, the United States has been strengthening the base perimeter, not with any urgency but as a gradual improvement.

A battalion of Marines, plus the artillery and tanks, has the main responsibility for guarding the base.

There was a rash of attempted infiltrations from the Cuban side earlier this year. Floodlights were removed from a golf driving range and erected along the six-foot-tall chain-link fence to discourage any more incursions.

Officers say it has worked, and they are hoping to ring the entire 45-square-mile with such lights.

The young Marines, who spend about four months on perimeter duty, are worked hard—so hard and so long that their officers say, they are too tired at the end of the day to worry about a lack of girls.

Somewhat typical of the Navy wives living here is Shirley Kelton, wife of a lieutenant.

Mrs. Kelton said she never had the feeling of being under siege—"I've never even thought about it."

LBJ Sets Up Citizens' Group To Study Draft

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP)—President Johnson Saturday set up a high-level citizens' commission to conduct a sweeping study of the fairness and effectiveness of the draft.

The review will take at least six months and may produce a major overhaul of the Selective Service Act.

Johnson named Burke Marshall, former assistant attorney general in charge of the Civil Rights Division of the Justice Department, to head the 20-member panel. Marshall now is general counsel and vice president of International Business Machines.

Will View All

No idea, including a possible draft lottery and the concept of national service by women in nonmilitary fields, will be excluded from the commission's area of study, press secretary Bill D. Moyers said.

Johnson said in a statement: "After the study has been completed, my advisers and I will weigh its recommendations very carefully in the light of our military requirements and the impact on our young people and their families."

"We will then offer to the American people the course of action which we believe to be best designed to protect the nation's freedom with the least and most equitable burden on our society."

Johnson created the commission at a time of mounting discussion and criticism of the draft.

Some critics have called it a "poor man's draft" because of the present policy of deferring college students who keep up their grades.

Some contend also it discriminates against Negroes and poor whites because a smaller percentage of them go to college.

Moyers said Johnson feels both a just-completed study of the draft by the Pentagon and hearings on it by the House Armed Services Committee have been very helpful.

Need Study

"But in his opinion they both point to the need for an overall study of draft problems by an impartial citizens' group," Moyers added.

"The President's feeling is that we need now to assure that the same rules and military fitness standards are being applied fairly and uniformly as possibly on a national basis," said Moyers.

"His feeling is that this can be done most effectively by a study such as he is establishing today. The commission will have a broad charter which in effect will go beyond the Pentagon study and hearings in Congress."

New legislation will be required by next June 30 when the present draft law is scheduled to expire.

Moyers said Johnson believes the draft system has been well administered, both during World War II and since, but that he wants a penetrating, long-range study of all proposals and problems with a view to the utmost fairness and effectiveness. He said the commission would be aided by a staff director and other personnel.

Lengthy Review

Moyers reported that Johnson for some time had been reviewing with administration officials the public discussion and debate about the draft. Moyers added this had led to Johnson's decision to form the commission.

Among members of the commission, in addition to Marshall, are John A. McCone, former director of the Central Intelligence Agency; Oveta Culp Hobby, president and editor of The Houston Post and former secretary of welfare; Gen. David M. Shoup, former commander of the Marine Corps; and Kingman

Illinois Prairie Girl Scout Council News

This summer has seen some new and noteworthy additions to Camp Shagbark. Probably the most welcome improvement is the electric motor which has been put on the water pump. There are also new fluorescent lights in the cabin and two night lights have been added to the camping area. There is one electric stove and a refrigerator in the cabin and several of the shelves have been rearranged to provide easier access to stored items. New electrical outlets have also been added. Two more camp site areas have been cleared, one of which is in use now. An area for parking cars has been cleared and graveled. On the entrance gate, thanks to Troop No. 42 and James Cruise, we finally have a new sign designating Camp Shagbark.

These improvements are possible because of a hard working Camp Chairman, Marie Houlette, and Camp Director, Bette Jackson and an interested Executive Director, Lois Freeman. It also takes money, which was earned by the Girl Scouts through their annual cookies sales. It also takes many dedicated volunteers, spending untold hours with those young Scouts, so that this equipment is used properly. All equipment, such as tents, unit boxes, cooking utensils, shovels, buckets, water cans and all the other items needed for camping have been purchased year by year through the cookie sale money. This Council not only provides equipment for Camp Shagbark, but also for the camps held in Beardstown, Carrollton, Roodhouse, and the Cadette Travel Camp.

The Illinois Prairie Girl Scout Council encompasses the counties of Cass, Greene, Morgan and Scott and this equipment is available for all Girl Scouts within the Council for any troop activity during the year, not just summer camping.

Several months before camp opens many busy hours are spent cleaning up any debris that has been scattered over the area. Some of the fathers come in with power saws to cut up any large fallen branches. A tree cutting service checks for dying trees and limbs. The poison ivy and weeds are sprayed twice before camp begins. Our well water is tested for purity. The tents and heavy equipment are checked and if need be are repaired. It takes a lot of planning, hard work, and volunteers to make Camp Shagbark function, but after you see or listen to a camper you know it has been well worth the time and effort spent.

Unit I was called the Happy Grumpies. Jo Caldwell was unit leader and was assisted by Peg Stevenson, Lois Cruise, Alice Wilbur, Judy Gano, Mickey Graff, Katherine Wallace and Marty Wallace. Sheryl Leake was the aide. This unit seemed to enjoy hiking and went on several long hikes. Tuesday they visited Jacksonville Campers site and Geneva Carlet was their hostess. Thursday they hiked around to Jacye Point. They won the clean unit flag several days.

Carolotta Strubbe, Marie Bell, Peggy Glossop, Aileen German, Virginia Davidmeyer, Lois Hileman, Gerry Schumann and Mrs. Kuehl were assistants during the week. This won a clean unit flag everyday and the quiet flag both nights.

Unit V was led by Shirley Lewis. She had lots of mothers to help with Annette Kilver, Robertin Erixon, Jane Losch, Pat Becker, Ila Price, Joy Houser, Jean Hart, Donna Meado and Evelyn Hewitt all putting in some time. Their aide was Dianne Flynn and because her camp name was Mickey, this unit became Mickey's Mice. They won the clean unit flag two days and the quiet flag one night.

Susan Pacotti was unit leader for Unit VI. She also had plenty of help from the following women, Mrs. Beard, Mrs. Ducey, Mrs. Miller, Mrs. Forrester, Mrs. Nunes, Mrs. Jennings, Mrs. Gordley, Mrs. Hynes, Mrs. O'Connor, and Mrs. Waldrich. Mary Kolberer was the aide. The unit chose the name Stag 13. Some of their visitors Wednesday were Father Caldwell, Sister Maura, Sister St. John, Sister Shelia Marie, Sister Wilbur and Sister Charlotte Marie, all from

Balaguer Inauguration Crowns Long OAS Pacification Effort

By ROBERT BERRELLEZ
SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic (AP) — For a Sunday night, the National Palace seemed unusually busy. The president was in. The opposite corner, 150 yards away, was dark. This meant the military chiefs were out. By itself this circumstance wasn't altogether uncommon. But for days the atmosphere had been alive with rumors and signs of a budding military coup against the provisional government, and for that reason the palace situation appeared alarmingly significant.

The date was Oct. 25, 1965. It was to mark the climax of another of many crises that nearly destroyed the provisional regime, the vehicle through which the Organization of American States restored constitutional government to this revolt-shattered country.

The elections last June 1 and Friday's inauguration of Dr. Joaquin Balaguer as president crown the 15-month Dominican pacification effort by the OAS and the equally important task of the nine-month-old provisional government.

The achievement demonstrated that, at least in a situation like the Dominican Republic's, collective hemisphere political action must be supplemented by its own peace-keeping force. Without the 8,000-man six-nation Inter-American Peace Force, the Dominican provisional government would not have survived.

Equally essential to its survival were the determination and personal courage of the provisional president, Hector Garcia-Godoy, a mild-mannered lawyer-diplomat who took a job no Dominican wanted.

This became evident most dramatically on that October night.

In the palace, the bald, mustached president sat with a few members of his Cabinet—awaiting something, but not certain just what. When the president sought to leave the building, a member of the palace guard turned him back with a friendly warning: "Mr. President, please do not leave. There are superior orders to shoot you."

Garcia-Godoy did not question the source of the "superior" order. The military bosses were angry at the executive. They wanted authority to launch a cleanup of civilian snipers attacking army regulars in the downtown area, once the stronghold of a rebel movement.

The president had refused. Weeks of negotiating had reunited the divided capital through the removal of physical barriers and the evacuation of rebel troops from downtown. Die-hard opponents of the negotiations, mostly well-armed left-wing extremists, remained behind and had been attacking an army battalion.

The president would not allow a massive military movement into the heart of Santo Domingo. He feared a renewal of the vicious fighting, such as had exploded into near-civil war April 24, might result in toppling the government and occupation of the country by the inter-American force.

Knowing they'd have to confront the hemisphere force—pledged to support the government—if they moved against the president, the military leaders waited. Nothing happened. After a few days the peace force entered the downtown area and restored calm. Another crisis was over.

The pool will be open daily from 1-9 p.m. Season tickets are available at a number of business houses in Jerseyville.

The pool is designed to handle the average swimmer as well as the professional. Its size permits five 70-foot racing lanes, yet may be thoroughly supervised by two life guards. In ad-

CHESTER DAY, the majordomo of the Manchester picnic shelter project, is warmly supported by Roy Daniel, right.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel now live in an attractive white cottage, with red shutters, just a hop and a skip from the park.

Mr. Daniel operated the last loom in the J. Capps and Sons plant, back in 1927.

The year before, he recalls, Capps had 60 looms buzzing at the business of making wool and silk into cloth for the well-dressed man.

"From Jacksonville I went to Detroit," he said, "and began making automobile bodies. From silk and wool to steel was quite a change, but I enjoyed every minute of it."

"Then when I retired I came back to Jacksonville and bought a big house, and then my three children got married, and left, and we sold the big house at a pretty good advance, and bought this place, just kitty-cornered from where you're standing, and that's it."

GRADING OF THE GRAVEL FILL for the Manchester shelter project was completed last week with the aid of numerous volunteers. Tuesday's workers included, blades: Earl Clark and Eugene Reardon (above), trucks: Henry VanTuyle, James Murray, Howard Million, Bill Lawson, Dee Bell, Morris Funk, Bill Duncan, Russ Heaton, Bosham Brothers, and Lee Williams, and helpers: Bob McKinley, Earl Blackman, Chester Day and Jim Bridges.

THE EAST SIDE of the Manchester public square has been buzzing with activity during past weeks as the proposed picnic shelter is beginning to take form. The open-sided structure will measure 144'x48' with posts set in eight feet on all sides. The shelter will hopefully be completed in time for the village's annual picnic on August 25th.

Manchester Picnic Shelter Progresses

MANCHESTER — Construction of a picnic shelter in the Manchester public park has progressed rapidly during the past week, with hopes for the project's completion in late August looking bright.

Chester Day, chairman of the public park shelter association, stated late last week that if the present co-operation continues, the building should easily be finished in time for the annual Manchester picnic on August 25th.

Ground-clearing, pouring of footings, and grading of the gravel fill have already been completed, while assembling of the steel frame is presently underway. Pouring of the concrete floor will be the final task involved in the project.

Once completed, the shelter will be used for picnics and other civic and community outdoor activities, open for the use of all members of the public. Its use for ice skating in the winter has been considered.

Funds for the project have been raised through private donations, the sale of three building properties donated to the association, and the proceeds from last year's picnic. A $2,000 deficit must still be raised, however, which will hopefully be secured through further voluntary contributions. Teenagers in the Community are presently aiding the fundraising drive by holding car washes every Saturday on the east side of the square.

Donations can be mailed to the: Manchester Public Park Shelter Association, P. O. Box 226, Manchester; or can be given to any member of the committee. Members include: Chester Day (chairman), Walt Hurt (vice-chairman), Russell Heaton, (treasurer), Stanley Weis (secretary), Elmer Sooy, Earl J. Clark, Wayne Hudson, Charles Travis, Carl Timmons, Henry Green, and Bill Green.

Head Start Lands In Morgan

75 Kids At Five Centers

Kids always seem to make their entrance into the adult world somehow, despite the odds.

But, according to the Department of Health, Education and Welfare, there is always the minority staying a couple of steps behind.

The reasons are many. So, when the War on Poverty was declared, children were also included for special attention.

The name of the theater was Head Start, designed to provide pre-kindergarten children with experiences they might have missed along the road to five years of age.

Jacksonville's program, which was allocated approximately $10,000 is located in five centers and is set up to accommodate 75 youngsters.

Centers are in the following schools, North Jacksonville, Jefferson, Washington, Franklin and Murrayville.

Personnel at the centers include a teacher, teacher assistant and cook (all salaried) and at least one volunteer per center. Parents take turns transporting children to the school.

The program is financed 90% by the federal government, with the community paying the remaining balance with either cash or "in-kind" contributions.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. (AP)—A total of 35,831 pre-school children will participate in Head Start programs in Illinois this summer, the Illinois Office of Economic Opportunity said Saturday.

The figure represents an increase of 1,907 children over the 1965 program, Director Thomas C. Jackson said.

Federal funds granted to Illinois communities for this year's programs total $5.8 million compared to $4.4 million a year ago. In addition to summer program, 8,050 boys and girls are enrolled in Head Start classes in full-year centers in Illinois.

The Morgan county Head Start program is providing the 10% payment in kind. School-room facilities and equipment are being used, which is considered equal to the local share.

Claim Many Benefits
A Head Start child receives all the special attention a Rockefeller, Kennedy or Roosevelt would get at Groton, Hill or Andover.

From hearing tests, dental examination, and medical check to psychological screening, children are the objects of individual treatment for approximately $4 per day.

Starting June 13, the program will continue until July 27. Children attend classes from nine o'clock in the morning until noon, five days a week.

Teachers, who attended a week's training institute at Purdue University, stress the individual attention. Classes are limited to 15 pupils.

Little things like color identification to language development are taught each day.

Local director William Walsh says it is easy to notice the improvements made during the first three weeks.

Language Increase
"The children have increased their vocabulary and are speaking more and more using sentences and simple phrases," he noted.

Walsh, highly enthusiastic about the program, maintains that the benefits of the program are easily noticed when the Head Start child reaches kindergarten.

"Many of these kids come from large families, or families where parents are working. Individual attention has in some instances been overlooked, and the kids suffer when they reach school."

He commented that during the initial program last year, one pupil was given a battery of tests with his classmates and scored poorly.

"Through additional testing we found that the child was slightly retarded. This might not have been caught if the child had been in a large kindergarten class, and in this way we could provide for special placement."

Parents Interested
Shirley Berry, a teacher assistant at Washington school who is employed with District 117 in educating the trainable handicapped, follows up classroom work with individual house calls.

"Many of the parents have noticed the increased interest in books their children have expressed, and are beginning to show more participation in the program," she commented.

STORY TIME AT FRANKLIN CENTER—Miss Pam Saunders, teacher in the Head Start program at Franklin elementary school center, devotes a portion of the morning hours to reading to the pupils. Children in all of the centers are most attentive when reading time comes, and maintain order and quiet. The book which Miss Saunders was reading was one of the pupils' favorites, and in several instances, they read along with their teacher.

The teachers, all women, are intense in their work, and are quick to praise what they have seen the program accomplish.

Medical Advantages
Walsh also pointed out the benefits children receive from the dental check.

Jacksonville dentist Dr. Paul Ineich examined all of the Head Start children. "In one instance," Ineich said, "we found one pupil with as many as 16 cavities."

He also indicated that out of the 75 children checked, 73 had never been to a dentist.

Walsh said that the dentist received $2 per preliminary examination per child.

Also in the budget was an additional $5 per child for a trip to a dentist. Walsh said that of course, not all the children would need this, and that additional money could be spent toward a child that needed tooth restoration.

What does all this mean later to the child?

Walsh said that follow-ups are made by the health department. Where there is a deficiency in fluoride, the parents are urged to purchase fluoridation tablets to supplement absence.

Records of each child are passed on to kindergarten teachers, and if children show a need for further testing, these are provided by the school system.

Programs to hold the children's attention vary at each center.

A Seed Is Planted
At Washington school, teacher Linda Lundgren had the children plant radishes in individual paper drinking cups, and then measure their growth.

Later, the children were taken to a tree nursery where they could see first hand, plants growing.

Walsh explained that a simple experience such as this created more interest in their own projects at the center.

Defends Program
Although the program has been criticized on a national level, advocates at the local level maintain that the program has definite merits.

"This is not a program, where it will take years to see whether or not there are benefits. You can see it within a month's or two's time when the children reach kindergarten and join in group activities, rather than shying away from classmates."

"Children are usually more critical of each other than are adults, and by giving these children a little more confidence, they will adapt much easier to the school surrounding and the other children," Walsh concluded.

NFO PLANS DISTRICT PICNIC

At the regular meeting of the 20th District National Farmers Organization in June, it was decided to hold a picnic for the entire District. The picnic was planned at this time to include the County of Macoupin which will be leaving the District due to the change in Congressional Districts. The picnic will be held July 31, at the 4-H Building, in the Park at Winchester. Dinner will be served at 1:30 p.m. Barbecued Pork and a drink will be furnished by the District.

Everyone who is a certified member of the District N.F.O. and his family is invited to attend. The Winchester Park has a pool for the pleasure of the younger set and an afternoon program is being planned with a speaker of national stature to be featured.

MIXING COLOR PAINTS A REAL TEST—Head Start teacher Mrs. Linda Lundgren, of the Washington school center, helps Jerry Hunter (l) and Steve Morgan try out their knowledge of which colors are used to create other colors during the morning session. Since materials are often scarce, because of the limited budget, fingerprint is devised from mixing liquid starch, dry camphor and food coloring.

TIMEOUT FOR A TEST OF COLORS—Miss Marty Wallace, Head Start volunteer worker at the Washington school center, helps Jerry Hunter learn colors in the peace and quiet of the empty auditorium. Each Head Start center is assigned at least one volunteer.

PAINTING WITH A POTATO—Four-year-old Austin Jett experiences a new use of the potato with Miss Nancy Bradney, volunteer Head Start worker. Young Jett uses a potato, sliced in half with a design engraved on the bottom, to make abstract patterns of his own choosing with Miss Bradney's assistance.

TRAVELING HEAD START DENTIST AT MURRAYVILLE—Dr. Paul Ineich of Jacksonville examines one of the Head Start pupils assigned to the Murrayville center. All pupils enrolled in the program were provided with a dental examination, which cost the local program $2 per pupil. Above, Ineich improvises, using sunlight through a window in the gymnasium, and a chair elevated by building blocks to provide a better angle of view into the child's mouth.

TESTING HEARING WITH A DIFFERENT RING—During the first two weeks of the local Head Start program, each pupil was tested for hearing defects by Morgan county public health nurses, Bobby Slater, of the Jefferson school center, listens intently for a sound through the headset. When he hears a sound, Bobby places a ring on the cone, indicating to the nurse, Mrs. Ruth Watson, how long it takes him to hear the tone. In the picture below, Shirley Berry, assistant teacher, sees her pupils off at the Washington school center.

Chicago Livestock Market Report

CHICAGO (AP)—The market for butcher hogs was unevenly steady to as much as $1 a hundredweight lower for the week after having leveled off from five successive days of declines.

The top of $26.75 for the week was paid sparingly on Monday. By Friday, the peak was down to $25.75 and the average price to $24.75 compared with $25.59 last week and $24.26 a year ago. The supply of 10,500 head for the week was up 2,000 head from the very small run of the previous week when the top price went to $27.40, highest in four weeks.

Slaughter steer prices strengthened in Friday's trade and for the week they were up 25 to 50 cents from the previous week. However, the average price fell to $24.79, lowest since April 1965. It compared with $25.28 for the previous week and $27.29 a year ago.

New York Stock Market

NEW YORK (AP)—Worry over the spread of U.S. bombing of North Viet Nam and rising interest rates sent the stock market to a steep loss last week.

Sharp declines occurred in the first three sessions. A rally developed Thursday afternoon and continued Friday, reducing early losses.

Brokers said the slump Monday and Tuesday was in anticipation of long rumored bombings of oil installations near Hanoi and Haiphong. When these bombings started Wednesday, the decline continued.

Wednesday, Chemical Bank New York Trust Co. announced an increase in the prime rate—the interest charged biggest and best borrowers — to 5 1/2 percent from 5 1/4 percent. Other major banks throughout the nation followed the move.

That was blamed for the continuation of the dive Thursday morning.

Morgan Guaranty Trust Co. of New York boosted its interest rate on loans to brokers to 6 percent from 5 1/2 percent. This, too, was unsettling to investors.

However, by Thursday afternoon the nervousness appeared to have run its course. The market rallied vigorously and all but wiped out the big morning loss.

The turnaround as the Dow Jones average of 30 industrials approached its mid-May low was encouraging, and analysts felt the market may at last have found a support level.

The week's decline came on moderate volume. A total of 30,141,910 shares changed hands compared with 35,694,850 the previous week.

Of the 1,557 issues traded, 1,063 declined and 362 advanced. The Associated Press 60-stock average lost 4.7 to 316.2. The Dow Jones average of 30 industrials fell 20.10 to 877.06.

American Telephone finished the week with a gain of 1 1/2. Douglas Aircraft, which lost heavily the previous week after reporting a loss for the 1966 first quarter, slumped 14 1/2. Texas Gulf Sulphur lost 5 points and Fairchild Camera was off 3.

Bond prices dropped sharply in the face of increased rates on bank loans and the intensification of the Viet Nam war.

Many corporate and municipal bond prices hit or dipped below their previous lows for the year reached in March or April. U.S. government bonds were sharply lower for the week.

NICHOLS PARK LADIES DAY GOLF NEWS

The weatherman provided a beautiful day for the Guest Day at Virginia Country Club last Tuesday. Clubs represented were Old Orchard, Pittsfield, Lincoln Greens, Rushville Women's group and Nichols Park. Local winners were Lois Hayes, low gross, Suzie Tucker, low net, Marge Howard, low putts, and high putts, Edna Greenler.

For those unable to attend the Virginia Guest Day, a Throw Out event was held at Nichols Park. The second, fourth and sixth hole scores were subtracted from the total score.

The following winners will receive a new golf ball, Toni Rayburn, Fran Chumley and Liz Dowland.

The Early Bird Tournament will be completed this week, so look forward to seeing the picture of champions in next week's paper. I have a feeling it may be harder to get the winners together for a picture than it was to schedule a time to play the matches, however, we'll do our best.

This coming Tuesday the play for the day will be REMORSEFUL GOLF, so please check your program books so you have an idea how it is played. Yours truly is in charge this week, and I feel like a typical old school teacher in passing out assignments so less explanation will be needed.

It was good to be able to play a round of golf with Alpha Witham on Thursday, her first since the fall. The foot is coming along fairly well and she promises me that this will be my last week to write the column. Personally I think Alpha is leading me on, but she tells me this isn't true. But I intend to get back at her either on the golf course or at a bridge table.

One reminder, our Guest Day will be July 12, and each and every one is needed to help make this day a success. If you are willing to help contact an officer and sign the list in the Pro Shop if you can play that day. Plans to date include coffee and rolls, nine hole golf event, luncheon at Blackhawk and presentation of prizes.

Until then, have fun, fellowship and good golf with the Nichols Park Gals!

"5. Any other factors deemed relevant by the commission."

Movers said the commission's recommendations would cover the following:

"1. Methods of classification and selection of registrants.

"2. Their qualifications for military service.

"3. Grounds for deferment and exemption.

"4. Procedures for appeal and the protection of individual rights.

"5. Organization and administration of the Selective Service System at the national, state and local level."

Movers said changes of regulation or the law might lead to young men in similar circumstances being treated the same way throughout the country.

Also to be considered, Movers said, are the desirability of drafting men right after high school or college, steps to reduce the rate of rejections for service, evaluation of college student deferment practices, and the most appropriate way of selecting college-trained men for the armed forces.

Challengers

same district with other incumbents due to changes in the geographical make-up of their districts.

They were:
The Democrats: Rep. Lindley Beckworth of Texas, beaten by Rep. Ray Roberts; Rep. D.R. (Billy) Matthews of Florida, beaten by Rep. Don Fuqua.

The Republican: Rep. Ralph Harvey of Indiana, beaten by Rep. Richard L. Roubush.

The sweep in renominations does not mean the incumbents have been without opposition. Some have had hard struggles. And, youngsters have seemed to think some of the congressional elders were vulnerable.

Veteran Rep. Harold L. Cooley, D-N.C., chairman of the Agriculture Committee, won handily but had to run scared in his district.

Daley Helps
Rep. Barratt O'Hara, 84, an Illinois Democrat, had an uncomfortable first primary margin, though he won with the help of Chicago Mayor Richard J. Daley's organization.

Another veteran Chicago Democrat, Rep. William L. Dawson, 80, accustomed to renomination without opposition, had to fight off a challenger.

Rep. Howard W. Smith, 83, is under heavy fire in Virginia. His opponent in the July 12 primary is George C. Rawlings Jr., a Fredericksburg attorney.

And this week a housewife, Margaret Heckler, 35, announced she would run against Rep. Joseph W. Martin, 81, in the Massachusetts Republican primary in September.

In Senate primary contests to date, one incumbent has been upset. Sen. Donald S. Russell, D-S.C., lost his renomination bid to Ernest F. Hollings, a former governor.

Both Virginia senators, A. Willis Robertson and Harry F. Byrd Jr., have Democratic renomination contests. Robertson is opposed by State Sen. William B. Spong of Portsmouth, and Byrd by former state Sen. Armistead L. Boothe of Alexandria.

He will be a senior next fall. The honor was presented at the final session of Florida Boys' State in Tallahassee Friday night.

Sonny Siebert

No-Hit Game Gave Siebert Bit Extra

By SANDY PADWE
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.
NEW YORK — (NEA) — Sonny Siebert would read the stories about Gary Peters and Jim Bouton, then he'd imagine the same words being written about him.

This was during the early part of the season when Sonny was trying to pitch with a sprained right index finger which completely upset his rhythm and pitching motion.

A pitcher's arm is a fragile instrument, delicate as a piece of Limoges china. An insignificant finger sprain can cause enough damage to change a career.

It was that way with Bouton and Peters. Big stars the year before, both had arm ailments in 1965 which led to a change in style and then almost total ineffectiveness.

Sonny Siebert spent his winter looking forward to 1966. Rightfully so, because last year he was 16-9 with 191 strikeouts for the Cleveland Indians.

But during spring training at Tucson, Ariz., he suffered the finger sprain which immediately led to changes in his delivery.

"I couldn't throw my fast ball and slider properly," he said. "My curve was all right, but I had changed my motion. I'm a leverage pitcher. Due to the injury I found myself losing the leverage. I started throwing strictly with my arm. And I did not follow through correctly."

After the first two months, he started 10 games and completed only two. His record, however, was 4-3, mainly because the Indians were leading the American League.

Then came the night of June 10 when the righthander faced

Phils Get 9 In 6th To Tumble Cubs 12-9

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Rich Allen started a nine-run outburst with a single and climaxed it with a two-run homer as Philadelphia rallied for 12-9 victory over the Chicago Cubs Saturday.

Allen had four hits for the day including two homers, driving in four runs as the Phillies won their fifth straight.

The Phillies sent 13 batters to the plate in the sixth against three Chicago pitchers, socking six singles, a double and Allen's 17th home run to erase a 6-2 deficit for an 11-6 lead.

Allen started the Phils' biggest inning in four years with a single. Tony Taylor, Jack Brandt, Bill White and Bob Uecker followed with singles, keying Cubs' starter Dick Ellsworth.

Don Lee relieved and walked pinch hitter Clay Dalrymple, served up a two-run single to Cookie Rojas and, after retiring John Callison for the first out, gave up a two-run double to Dick Groat.

Earlier, the Cubs had routed Jim Bunning with Billy Williams' two-run homer in the first, his 13th, three runs in the third, and another in the fourth. Even after the Phils' big inning the Cubs died hard in the 100 degree heat with three singles for two runs in the seventh off reliever Terry Fox. Chris Short, who hurled a 1-0 shutout Thursday night, came in to get the side out.

2:07 Paced Mile In Fair Program

GRIGGSVILLE — The harness racing program at the Western Illinois Fair had a 2:07.1 paced mile and a 2:13.2 trotted mile, here Saturday afternoon.

Queen's Laramie, owned by Olaf Anderson of Atwood, Ill., and driven by F. M. Thompson, won the second race, a free-for-all trot, in straight heats, the first in 2:07.1, and the second in 2:08.4.

Jody D., owned by Howard Harris of Decatur and driven by Bill Harris, won top money in the first race, a free-for-all trot, winning the second heat in 2:13.3. Dixie Sheraton, from Beloit, Wis., won the first heat in 2:13.2, but did not place in the second.

Bunny Beau, owned and driven by J. D. Specker of Mayview, Mo., won the third race, a three-year-old trot, in straight heats of 2:20.3 and 2:19.0.

Two horses shared top money in the finale, the J. E. "Dick" Bartlett Memorial. Vic Dominione, owned by Tom Long and Victor Bieser of Jerseyville and driven by F. Foster, took the second heat in 2:12.0. Mr. Dusty Hal, owned by A. Meek of Carrollton and driven by Norman Robinson, took the first heat in 2:13.0.

Two more days of harness racing will be staged at the fair, today and July 4, starting at 2:30 each afternoon. Four complete races, eight heats will be held.

MAY USE FRESHMEN

NEW YORK (AP) — The Eastern College Athletic Conference said Friday that 38 of its colleges would be permitted to use freshman athletes in the 1966-1967 academic year.

The freshmen would be eligible for varsity, junior varsity and lightweight teams, Commissioner Asa S. Bushnell said.

Baltimore Hurling Staff Surprising

BALTIMORE — (NEA) — Jimmy Piersall strode past the Baltimore dugout during batting practice and gave a yell at Hank Bauer.

"See that I get a batch of World Series tickets, sweetheart," the California outfielder said, grinning.

People are saying such things to the he-man manager of the Orioles, the image is of the Robinsons, Boog Powell, Curt Blefary and Russ Snyder, the muscle men. It is an image that members of the Baltimore pitching staff, starters and relievers, must see in their dreams.

Says Eddie Fisher, "This is a club where the bats can offset a slip in the pitching."

Still, when you think of the Orioles, the image is of the Robinsons, Boog Powell, Curt Blefary and Russ Snyder, the muscle men. It is an image that members of the Baltimore pitching staff, starters and relievers, must see in their dreams.

Mayo Smith, the Yankee superscout, won't go any further than McNally and says beyond that, "It's top luck."

Palmer, McNally and Bunker among them have had only six seasons in the big leagues. As George Jessel would say, he has neckties older than the pitchers in the Baltimore rotation.

"My pitching," said Bauer, taking his cue, "isn't as bad as people think it is. If the starters give me six or seven hard innings, they've done a good job. Then I bring somebody out of the pen. Pitchers like complete games. I know, but as far as I'm concerned, I like a win and I don't care how I get it."

Ask Bill Rigney, the Angel's manager, how he rates Baltimore pitching and he answers with his own question.

"Compared to what? I don't see any better staff in the league. Detroit's may be as good but not better. Sure, we'd all like to have a couple of 20-game winners, but who has those?"

"Baltimore definitely has the best bullpen, and that could make the difference," Rigney emphasized.

Barber, 27, lefthander, used to throw bullets and walk everybody. Now he throws strikes, and he will have to throw as many as possible because Milt Pappas is in Cincinnati.

"I don't feel any added pressure with Milt gone," Barber said. "Nothing is different. We still have to do the whole thing as a team."

"Guys say we don't complete enough games to win a pennant. To me, complete games are overrated. If I pitch seven innings or more and hold the other clubs to two runs or less I figure I've done my job. And I'm going to finish more games this year with Frank Robinson around."

One would think the Orioles needed another relief pitcher like Danny Thomas needs another nostril, but their trade at deadline was to get Eddie Fisher and his knuckler from the White Sox. Fisher worked a cool 82 games last year.

"I was glad to see the deal," Rigney said. "It means we can get Stu Miller and Fisher out of our systems in one town."

So there are Miller, Fisher and Dick Hall for the short relief and the brilliant rookie, Eddie Watt, drafted from the Orioles, and Gene Brabender for the long stuff. While this seems a blessing, it also could be an irritant to the starters who might think the deep relief staff makes Bauer trigger-happy.

"You have to go with the odds," argues sophomore Palmer. "The odds say your bullpen will get 'em out. You know they'll come in stronger than we are when we've been out there seven or eight innings. Who could get mad being relieved by someone like Miller or Fisher, the best in the business?"

Horton, Kaline Slug Home Runs For 7-3 Triumph

DETROIT (AP) — Willie Horton and Al Kaline each hit two-run homers and scored two runs, leading the Detroit Tigers to a 7-3 victory over the Kansas City Athletics Saturday.

Roger Repoz hit a solo homer off Wilson in the first inning and Dick McAuliffe slammed one for the Tigers leading off the bottom half of the inning.

Horton hit his lomer in the fifth and Kaline got his 16th of the year in the seventh.

Denies Retirement Plans
CHICAGO (AP) — Henry Forest, trainer of Kauai King, said Monday that he knows nothing of plans to retire the Kentucky Derby-Preakness winner.

Kauai King pulled up sore in finishing fifth in Saturday's $108,000 Arlington Classic.

Mike Ford, the owner who recently syndicated the 3-year-old colt, said in Baltimore that Kauai King would be retired to stud.

Redlegs Win 4-0 In First Of Tourney

DECATUR — Ace Bob Vinyard tossed a four-hit shutout as the Jacksonville Redlegs whipped Springfield, Mo., News-Leader, 4-0, in their opening game of the tough Decatur July 4 Invitational softball tournament, here Saturday afternoon.

The winning Redlegs, who will meet the Alton Chiefs at 1 p.m. this afternoon in the second round, got only one unearned run. The winners got three of the unearned variety in the third and romped in front there. Vinyard fanned six batters and did not give up a walk.

After two were out in the third, Fred Curtis singled and Gary Spangenberg reached on one of two Springfield boots. Bill Oldenettel, who entered the tournament hitting over .400, then tripled in a pair and scored himself when the relay was thrown away.

Spangenberg's solo homer in the top of the seventh ended the scoring for the afternoon.

If the Redlegs whip the Alton Chiefs, who downed Rockford, 8-1, they will then meet the winner of the Decatur Riley's-Hannibal, Mo. game at 7 p.m. Sunday evening. A loss will have the Redlegs playing at 9 a.m. Monday morning. There are 12 teams in the double elimination affair.

Washington (AP) — The 106th renewal of the British Open returns to Muirfield for the first time since 1959. That year a youngster named Gary Player of South Africa crashed into big time by winning. He never has stopped.

Muirfield, a giant of a challenge, regards St. Andrews as a sort of Johnny-come-lately.

Washington (AP) — Mickey Mantle of the New York Yankees, collecting home runs at a two-at-a-time clip, has climbed into the American League homer derby with seven in five games and made a strong bid for an All-Star Game berth on merit.

The 34-year-old $100,000-a-year outfielder finished sixth in the voting for the AL's All-Star outfield but he figured to be added to the squad by Manager Sam Mele.

However, until the beginning of the week, Mantle figured to be a sentimental choice. Now he figures to make it on his play.

Mantle has doubled his home run total since last Tuesday. He hit two homers Tuesday in Boston and added two more Wednesday. He didn't connect Thursday but hit No. 12 against Washington Friday, then added two more Saturday against the Senators.

Mantle got off to a slow start while recuperating from an off-season shoulder operation. As of June 24 he was hitting only .250. He has collected 13 hits in his last 25 at-bats — a .520 average — and now is hitting .283 with 14 homers and 35 runs batted in.

On Tuesday and Wednesday there will be grand circuit racing and the Wednesday program also offers the Little Pat and Greyhound stakes with purses totaling $100,000.

NEW YORK (AP) — Reliever Jack Hamilton pitched out of a bases-loaded, none out jam in the eighth inning, saving the victory for Dennis Ribant as the New York Mets downed Pittsburgh 4-3 Saturday.

Ribant was working on a five-hitter going into the eighth, but the Pirates loaded the bases on a single by Jerry Lynch and consecutive errors on two attempted sacrifices by Ribant.

Hamilton came on and struck out sluggers Roberto Clemente and Willie Stargell before getting Jose Pagan on a fly ball, ending the threat.

Clemente had homered in the first inning and New York's Al Luplow tied the score with the first National League homer in the bottom of the first. The Mets grabbed the lead for keeps with two runs in the fourth.

Cleon Jones drew a two-out walk and rode home on Ed Kranepool's double. Ed Bresnahan then singled Kranepool home.

Jim Pagliaroni homered for the Pirates in the fifth.

The Pirates nicked Hamilton for a run in the ninth on a single by Pagliaroni, a wild pitch and a single by Matty Alou.

British Open Set To Open Wednesday

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — The cream of the world of professional golf assembled here Sunday to fight for one of the smallest cash prizes on the year's gold-laden schedule.

The reason: winning it yields a bonanza.

One hundred and 30 golfers from a dozen countries plus the United Kingdom tee off Wednesday in quest of the 1966 British Open title.

The prize is only $4,900 but the winner qualifies for the $77,500 World Series of Golf in Akron, Ohio, Sept. 7-10, made up of the United States and British Open champions, the PGA champion and the Masters' winners. He also collects advertising dividends hard to calculate. Tony Lama, the California willow, once said his 1964 British Open crown was worth $100,000 to him.

Basque-ing In First

Somebody ought to tell Jim Ryun that it would be more politic for a 19-year-old college freshman to act less deferential when he's being interviewed by a group of the nation's outstanding newsmen, most of them old enough to be his father... and that it's outright rude to be looking over their heads in the process.

If young Ryun is so irked by the constant attention his mile records attract, he can duck it by restricting his jogs to Kansas country roads which means he wouldn't have to jam any more medals in his drawers.

Baltimore has been able to keep its top position in the American League because it has received solid catching from Andy Etchebarren, a rookie nobody ever figured to hit since he was never above .225 in five seasons in the minors. But Andy says, "I think I'm a better hitter than I am right now, even though I've been getting some big hits. When I get everything together, I can hit .260 or .270 and maybe 20 home runs a year."

Etchebarren is of Basque derivation. The Basques are noted for being jai alai players, but Andy shrugs, "I tried it when I was small but never could play the game. It was too tough for me."

Andy Etchebarren

With his craggy face and dark eyebrows, Etchebarren conjures up an image of the young Yogi Berra, a resemblance which has been brought to his attention.

NEW YORK — (NEA) — In his own words, Alvin (Pete) Rozelle of the National Football League is a commissioner "walking on eggs."

Peace, it may be wonderful for the owners of the pro teams in terms of immediate stabilization of their financial pictures, but for Rozelle it's an interim period of wariness.

Over one shoulder he has the Justice Department and over the other shoulder he has Congress, and Pete's playing it with all the cynicism of an Iron Curtain plenipotentiary before he steps in and takes full command of the two professional football leagues (NFL and American) which come under his domain since the startling merger of June 8.

Sports in the second half of the 20th century are no longer a matter of winning or losing and sowing the seeds of future victory on the field of friendly strife. What's big now, baby, is merchandising and licensing, telecasting and ancillary rights, sponsor cost-per-minute and lobbyists.

This adds up to interstate commerce, with possible restraint of trade and all the other trappings of big business. So now the Justice Department and Congress can get into the game.

The pro football leagues aren't too worried about the Justice Department's tampering with their merger, even though it means a common draft and monopoly (theoretically) and a college kid who just got his degree in football can't hold up the pros for half a million in loot. The feeling is that pro football has so grabbed the public's imagination that the Justice boys wouldn't want to mess around with the structure. At least, that's the way pro football's playing it now.

They'd be even more confident of their stature, however, if the Hart bill — popularly known as the Sports bill — could get through Congress during the current session. It's already halfway there, having passed the Senate. But it's held up right now in Rep. Emanuel Celler's (D-N.Y.) Judiciary subcommittee.

Hearings aren't even scheduled for at least a month, according to Kenneth Harkins, chief counsel of the antitrust division of Subcommittee No. 5 (which means he's Rep. Celler's chief aide). And there are no plans to get hopping on the Sports bill until the pending civil rights bill is disposed of.

Rozelle has sources which indicate to him, however, it won't take that long. (For one thing, the football pros are so organ-

"Yogi and I'll run a close race," he smiles, "for good looks." Dick McAuliffe, the hustling infielder of the Detroit Tigers, says he settled down as a major leaguer by slowing up. "I've always been the type of ball player who would hurry up and do things," notes Dick. "I was too fast fielding the ball and trying to get rid of it. In the big leagues you've got to be smarter—know the hitters and how fast they move down the line. On a slow guy you can take your time. I was erratic at first with my arm."

Although he has switched between shortstop and third, Dick was chosen as A.L. All-Star shortstop. "They pick you out where you play most," he says, "and no matter where I play, I think of myself as a shortstop."

Lee Evans, the surprise quarter-mile winner at the National AAU track meet, had never been out of California before he competed in New York's Randall's Island stadium. Young Lee was the workhorse for his San Jose City College team this spring, running the 100, 220, 440, 880, intermediate hurdles, mile relay and half-mile relay and winning in all of them.

The world's current highest pole vaulter, Bob Seagren, got his start by jumping off a garage roof. "Until one day I caught my neck on a clothes line," he grins.

The injury to Kauai King that has forced the Kentucky Derby and Preakness winner into stud has at least ended all the business about how to pronounce his name. The latest communique, from White Grubler of Atlantic City, insisted that it was "ka-o-ah-ee"—accent on the third syllable—since the Hawaiians pronounce every letter. Whitney's authority: Arthur Godfrey.

The Philadelphia Phillies may be playing in-and-out baseball this summer, but they'll match any other team in at least one department: salaries.

Between you'n' me, the Pittsburgh Steelers, in signing a contract to play in the new stadium that'll be built, got a big concession—that is, the baseball Pirates will still retain all the concession money at football games, but the Steelers don't have to pay to clean up the debris... as the Vikings do in Minnesota.

ized in Washington they've got their own lawyers and lobbyists.

The Sports bill, and its fate, will determine how fast Rozelle can act in his organization of postmerger pro football. Its advantages are obvious, since it will put football in the same specialized position as baseball; the bill would enable a sports league to operate in its unique way without the restraint put on normal business. In other words, they wouldn't have to worry about the legality of option contracts, common drafts, equal split of television money, etc.

Meanwhile, Rozelle, whose own contract as NFL commissioner hasn't been renewed yet, is reluctant to step in as a czar because it might raise the hackles of Celler, who's friendly to football but has had a hate-on for baseball ever since the Brooklyn Dodgers were moved out of his native borough.

So the immediate problems confronting pro football are in abeyance. Like 1) who's going to run the AFL if and when Al Davis quits; 2) who'll be the NFL boss; 3) untangling the dual signings of such people as quarterback Roman Gabriel of the Rams (and Oakland); 4) pushing into new expansion areas (the NFL is committed for '67, the AFL may wait until '68); 5) keeping CBS happy since the NFL title game has been watered down by the impending championship meeting of the two leagues; 6) choosing a site for the latter; 7) revising the common draft so that weak sisters like Denver get a better break than one out of every 28 choices (Rozelle has some ideas on the subject).

If you don't think Rozelle is gingerly impatient, consider this: The Atlanta Falcons have already started football workouts in Asheville, N. C.

GOLF FOR THE BIRDS

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP) — Stan Ely thinks golf is for the birds.

Crows took two of his golf balls after he played shots on the fifth hole Sunday at Leongatha.

As he was about to drive on the seventh hole he was distracted when a kookaburra (laughing jackass bird) started to laugh from a nearby tree.

Ely duffed the shot. About to play his third shot at the seventh hole the kookaburra laughed again. And Ely duffed again.

Finally he got the ball onto the green. Out of the tree came the kookaburra. It picked up the ball and flew off.

THE CURRENT RAGE among major league outfielders, it seems, is to take to the stands to catch a fly ball. Two of these four outfield acrobats were successful—San Francisco's Len Gabrielson and Baltimore's Frank Robinson (bottom left and center). Tommy McCraw (top) and Rick Reichardt of the Angels had to settle for nice tries.

Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — How good is Jim Ryun?

"He could be the greatest ever," says Dyrrol Burleson, a superb miler who has competed against the world's best runners in two Olympics.

"That boy is better than Peter Snell right now," said the Oregonian recently. "As for Herb Elliott, I think Ryun eventually will surpass him."

Until Ryun came along, Snell, of New Zealand, and Elliott, of Australia, generally were hailed by the athletes themselves as the greatest in the crucible of competition. Both have retired from running.

Michel Jazy, the Frenchman who holds the world mile record of 3:53.6, and Ron Clarke, another mighty Australian record-buster, are respected by the other runners but are rated a notch below Snell and Elliott.

Record Holders
Snell, as a 21-year-old, won the Olympic 800 meter gold medal in 1960 and four years later captured the 800 and 1,500 meter gold medals at Tokyo. He also set world records of 3:54.1 for the mile, 1:44.3 for 800 meters and 1:45.1 for 880 yards.

Elliott set a world record of 3:54.5 for the mile in 1958 but the mark the middle distance men regard as the Mt. Everest of running now is the Australian's 3:35.6 for 1,500 meters—the metric mile—set in his perfect, runaway victory in the 1960 Olympics at Rome. That time rates as the equivalent of a 3:52 mile.

Both Ryun and Jazy are setting their sights on that mighty mark now.

"Amazing Runner"
"Ryun is an amazing runner," said Burleson who finished second to the 19-year-old Kansas' 3:56.6 winning mile in the National AAU championships last week. "The half mile record he broke. I considered the best on the books."

That was Snell's record until the gangling, 6-foot-2, 160-pound super-frost smashed it in his first major try at the half mile. Ryun did it in the U.S. Track and Field Federation meet at Terre Haute, Ind., on June 10 when he ran away from his field. He undoubtedly would have been faster except that he turned his head to peek at his hopelessly outclassed competition.

In only his second two-mile race, Ryun won the event at the Los Angeles Coliseum Relays May 14 in 8:25.2, an American record and only 2.6 seconds behind Jazy's world record.

Just Misses Mile Mark
He ran his 3:53.7 mile, only one-tenth of a second off Jazy's world record, on June 4 when he beat arch-rival Jim Grelle of Oregon by about 20 yards. In this race, too, he lost some time by looking over his shoulder. He might have equalled or bettered the standard right then.

Ryun has reached the stage where he almost has to set his own pace. He's just too fast and strong.

In the National AAU meet, he took over slightly past the quarter-mile mark and didn't open up until the last 200 yards when he sprinted and wound up with an astonishing 52.6 final quarter.

Runs 120 Miles Per Week
Ryun, who runs about 120 miles a week with daily stints of two to three hours, has become so strong and fast that he probably will kill off his friends in the third lap of his miles.

That was the way Elliott did it. In the 1960 Olympic 1,500, the 22-year-old Australian sprinted to a 10-yard lead with a blazing third lap. Then he poured it on in the final turn of the last lap and won by more than 20 yards.

The first schoolboy to break four minutes, Ryun now has nine sub-four minute miles, eight of them outdoors.

A dedicated runner since his sophomore days in high school under Timmons, Ryun says; he still enjoys running and doesn't feel that the spartan training grind deprives him of much.

Noble Victory Equals Record, Wins Roosevelt

WESTBURY, N. Y. (AP) — Noble Victory, in front practically all the way, won the $50,000 American Trotting Championship Saturday night in world record-equaling time and earned the right to represent the United States in the $100,000 Roosevelt International.

The International will be trotted next Saturday night, with Noble Victory, recently syndicated for $1 million by Kenneth D. Owen of Houston, Tex., opposing a hand-picked contingent of six European representatives and Ambro Flight of Canada.

Stanley Dancer sent Noble Victory over the 1/4 miles in 2:31.25, matching the world standard set by Speedy Scot in the same race in 1964.

Dancer, who will be driving in his fifth International, sent Noble Victory to the front before the field of 11 had reached the quarter pole, and then easily tossed back every challenge.

In earning first money of $25,000, he finished three quarters of a length in front of the lightly-regarded Worthy Scot. Three lengths back in third place came Perfect Freight, who had beaten many of the same horses a week ago in the $86,111 Realization Trot.

As the second choice, Noble Victory paid $5.80, $4.60 and $3.40 for his second triumph in six starts this year. Worthy Scot, driven by Harry Burright and owned by the Arnold Cattle Co. of Illinois, returned $11 and $7.20. Perfect Freight, representing the ABC Stables of New York and driven by Jimmy Dennis, returned $6.20 to show.

NICKLAUS LOSES 6 BALLS

MUIRFIELD, Scotland (AP) — Jack Nicklaus powered his way around Muirfield's demanding seaside links Friday in practice for the 1966 British Open golf championship and lost six balls in the rough.

The Columbus, Ohio, pro, who announces continually he will be unhappy until he has added the British title to his long list, toured the 6,887-yard, par 71 course.

Red-Hot Orioles Sweep Two More

BALTIMORE (AP) — Frank Robinson's two-run seventh-inning homer in the opener and Boog Powell's run-producing single in the eighth inning of the nightcap gave American League-leading Baltimore a 6-5, 3-2 doubleheader sweep over Minnesota Saturday night.

Powell also drove in a run in the sixth inning with a sacrifice fly as the Orioles took a 2-1 lead in the second game but the Twins tied it in the seventh on a homer by Rich Rollins.

The Orioles then came back and pulled out front again in the eighth when Frank Robinson walked, and Brooks Robinson and Powell followed with singles.

Frank Robinson's homer in the opener, with Russ Snyder on base, wiped out a 5-4 Minnesota lead fashioned on a three-run pinch-hit homer by Rollins. It also boosted Robinson's league-leading homer total to 20.

In the nightcap, pitcher Jim Grant singled in the first run for the Twins in the fifth but the Orioles pulled ahead 2-1 in the sixth on a single by Snyder, Brooks Robinson's double, an error by Tony Oliva and Powell's sacrifice fly.

Torre And Freehan All-Star Catchers

NEW YORK (AP) — Joe Torre of the Atlanta Braves and Bill Freehan of the Detroit Tigers were named Saturday as the catchers for the July 12 All-Star baseball game at St. Louis, completing the starting line-ups.

The selection of Freehan, a 6-foot-3, 205-pounder, gave the Tigers three of the eight starting berths on the American League team, exclusive of pitchers. The other Tigers are shortstop Dick McAuliffe and outfielder Al Kaline.

Baltimore is the only other American League team with two. The Orioles had Brooks Robinson at third base and Frank Robinson in the outfield.

Torre is the second Brave to make the team, joining outfielder Hank Aaron. San Francisco also has a pair in first baseman Willie McCovey and outfielder Willie Davis.

The National League vote for catcher by players, managers and coaches was a landslide for Torre, who had been used much of the time at first base in recent weeks. Torre drew 216 votes and Tom Haller of San Francisco, the runnerup, had 27. The only others with 10 or more were Tim McCarver of St. Louis with 21 and John Bateman of Houston with 10. It was the third straight year Torre has been named starter.

Freehan's First Start
Freehan, now in his fourth full season in the majors, was named to the team last year as a reserve. This will be his first start. The Tiger catcher edged Earl Battey of the Minnesota Twins, the 1965 starter by 16 votes, 111-95.

Spuzich Takes One-Stroke Lead In Women's Open

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Sandra Spuzich, a pro from Indianapolis, Ind., took the 54-hole lead in the United States Women's Open Golf Championship Saturday by shooting a four-over-par 76.

Miss Spuzich, winner of less than $2,600 in 12 previous tournaments this year, shook off the second round co-leader, veteran Mickey Wright, whose 77 dropped her into a second place tie with defending champion Carl Mann one stroke behind the pacesetter.

Miss Spuzich had a 54-hole total of 225, while Miss Wright, seeking an unprecedented fifth Open title, not only fell out of the lead but also was overhauled by Miss Mann whose 75 matched the day's best round.

Miss Spuzich and Mickey had shared the 36-hole lead at 149 after Miss Wright took the first-round lead Thursday with a 71, the only subpar round yet fashioned on Hazeltine National Golf Club's rugged par 72 layout.

In fourth place at 227 was Clifford Ann Creed, who had a 76.

Fifth was the 1963 Open champion, Mary Willis, whose 76 Saturday gave her a 228 total. Sharon Miller, scoring a 77, moved into sixth place at 229, while the year's leading money winner, Kathy Whitworth, was seventh with 230 after her third-round 76.

BYRON, Ill. (AP) — A Kokomo, Ind. team captured top honors Saturday in the marathon for gas-fueled dragsters at the Rockford 500 national drag racing championships.

The team of Ken Hirata and Phil Hobbs attained 187.50 miles per hour in 8.25 seconds.

The winning team in the nitro-fueled dragster marathon was The Surfers of Santa Monica, Calif. Their entry was clocked at 209.30 m.p.h. in 7.64 seconds.

The junior gas eliminator was Walt Nielsen of Minneapolis. His entry attained 163.63 m.p.h. in 9.16 seconds.

NAME TERRELL WBA CHAMPION

DALLAS, Tex. (AP) — Ernie Terrell, as expected, was named heavyweight boxing champion of the World Boxing Association in ratings issued Friday, with Cassius Clay named the No. 1 contender.

Clay, in other organizations of the sport, is recognized as the world champion.

Andy Etchebarren, Baltimore rookie, drew strong support and finished third with 40 votes. Elston Howard of New York with 17 and Jose Azcue of the Cleveland Indians with 15 were the others with 10 or more.

The American League pitchers will be announced Wednesday by Sam Mele manager of AL All-Stars and the National League pitchers Thursday by Walter Alston, who'll manage the NL.

The rest of the 25-man squads will be released Friday. Starting pitchers will be picked the day before the game.

All starters, except pitcher, must play at least the first three innings. A pitcher can not pitch more than three innings unless it is an extra inning game.

LA Defeats Cards And Gibson, 7-2

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Jim Lefebvre's fourth-inning triple drove in what proved to be the deciding run Saturday night as the Los Angeles Dodgers defeated St. Louis 7-2.

Phil Regan pitched 2 1/3 innings of scoreless relief, giving starter Claude Osteen, 10-6, the victory over Bob Gibson, 11-3. The Cards committed four errors, two of them letting in two unearned runs in the third. In that inning, a double by John Roseboro, errors by Gibson and shortstop Dal Maxvill, and Murrey Wills' infield out helped the Dodgers go ahead 2-1.

In the fourth, a single by Willie Davis, Lefebvre's triple and a squeeze bunt by Lou Johnson cost Gibson two more runs.

Cook Betters Two Records In Women's AAU

FREDERICK, Md. (AP) — Charlotte Cook bettered a pair of American records in middle-distance races and Olympic sprint champion Wyomia Tyus won two dashes Saturday night in the National AAU Women's Track and Field Championships.

Miss Cook came from behind with a gritty second effort on the final straightaway to win the 880 in two minutes and five seconds, slicing more than six seconds off the recognized record.

She then came back to capture the 440 in 53.4 seconds, although she already has a 53.3 clocking awaiting recognition.

Miss Tyus defended her title in the 100-yard dash, winning in 10.5 seconds, took the 220 in 23.8, and then anchored the Tennessee State relay team, which set a meet record of 45.7 in the 440.

TODAY'S THOUGHT

By BILL BUCHANAN

July 4, 1776, seems a long time ago. But, when you arbitrarily consider age 70 a life time ago, our nation was born less than three life times ago. As a young nation, we had and still have pernicious and persistent diseases with our growing up pains. We seem to sway and stagger at times but somehow manage to stay on our feet in freedom. In our growing (and groaning at times), we Americans recorded an unmatched national growth from rags to riches, from poverty to power.

Do you ever wonder what life may be like in another three life times hence? Will our descendants be able to change laws by changing the men who make them? Will they be self-disciplined in freedom or chained in regimentation? Will they consider our 20th Century reputation, and their own, as a precious legacy? Will they live in confusion, uncertain whether they should follow their consciences, uncertain whether they should obey God? In expanded scientific achievement, will they show humility before God and have a trust in Him? Or, will they think their human adequacies can supply easy answers to hard questions?

Come to think of it, most of these questions are not 200 years ahead of time. The right answers and right action in our time could help simplify answers to other questions, come July 4th, 2176.

Quincy Jury Clears Youth Of Murders

QUINCY, Ill. (AP)—A verdict of innocent was returned late Saturday night in the murder trial of Ronald McCleery, 18, charged with murdering two young secretaries.

The Circuit Court jury deliberated more than 11 hours before announcing its decision.

Judge John T. Reardon told the jury it could return one of five verdicts—Not guilty; not guilty because of insanity from which the defendant has recovered; not guilty because of insanity from which the defendant has not recovered; guilty with a death penalty mandate; or guilty without recommendation for a penalty.

The young women slain by shotgun and knife wounds March 21 were Miss Judith Ann Greening, 22, and Miss Donetta Pickens, 21.

The state's evidence was built around fingerprints, one of them with blood in or over it, which were found in Miss Pickens' car.

McCleery, his mother, and his half sister testified that he had been painting the ceiling of a kitchen in their home the night the two women were killed.

The evidence went to the jury Saturday shortly after noon.

Sandy Beach Lacks Several Facilities But Hopes Are High

Project Sandy Beach isn't ready for swimming yet because of the lack of several safety and convenience facilities but hopes are high for at least a partial or pre-view opening next weekend.

The long holiday weekend will leave something lacking with lake area visitors, but there will be many more weekends later.

Sandy Beach officials met Saturday morning and were forced to prohibit swimming at the beach for numerous legal and safety reasons.

The City of Jacksonville has adequate insurance for the operation of a beach area it is true, according to Mayor Byron Holkenbrink. "Several requirements must also be met in order for the insurance to be effective and we just haven't been able to get the job done in time for the Fourth of July," he said.

Insurance Requirements
Insurance requirements include fencing of the beach area so that patrons are considered controlled or at least registered in some way. Lifeguards must also be on duty at all times. City officials were reluctant to order the beach to remain closed but felt it would be better than providing the facilities for a serious accident or tragedy.

Alderman Homer Baptist said Saturday evening that the lumber is on hand to construct life-guard stations and that carpenters would assist in this task next week.

448 Tons of Sand
A large number of farmers and business firms donated the use of their trucks to haul 448 tons of sand Saturday, believed to be about the last needed. The sand is still piled at the water's edge and will be dumped into the water by dragline next week some evening.

The beach house at Sandy Beach is a well-built and ample building. Plumbers have worked several nights at the beach house and donated their services to help push the project to completion. As in all construction jobs, the various steps must be in proper sequence.

No Toilets Yet
There are no toilet facilities in operation at the beach area and the water has not been connected or fixtures installed. This was another consideration for Sandy Beach officials when they decided not to open the beach for this weekend.

Mayor Holkenbrink urged the public to give their cooperation over the holiday period. "Let's keep Lake Jacksonville free from water tragedy over the Fourth," he said. He also called attention to a city ordinance which has been in effect for years prohibiting swimming in other than designated areas. Sandy Beach has not yet been officially designated as a swimming area.

Alderman Homer Baptist said he picked up about a case of soft drink bottles from the sand Saturday morning. He urged visitors not to throw bottles in the sand since they could easily be broken by machinery and cause serious injury to some unsuspecting person walking without shoes.

Baptist said all soft drinks sold on the premises will be in paper containers only.

Bluffs Girl, 9, Hurt Saturday

A nine-year-old Bluffs girl was treated for injuries at Passavant hospital Saturday night following a two-car accident in the 800 block of West College avenue.

A hospital spokesman identified the youth as LouAnn Vannier, daughter of Mrs. Helen F. Vannier of Bluffs.

The girl was treated for facial lacerations and later released. She was an occupant of a car driven by Mrs. Vannier, which was eastbound on College avenue.

City police said that the Vannier car struck the rear of a properly parked vehicle, owned by William B. Grissom of 831 West College.

Mrs. Vannier was attempting to make an adjustment with the front seat of the car, and did not see the parked vehicle.

Both vehicles were heavily damaged, and towed from the scene. Police listed the time of the accident at eight o'clock.

HUCK FINN'S, ALL—This group of volunteers moved quite a lot of sand Saturday but the task will be speeded next week with a dragline. Soon after this picture was taken some of these same boys were discovered raking sand half way across the lake. One would suspect that "rake-swimming" might become as popular as "broom-dancing."

Crit Haneline Holdup Victim; He Shoots Back

By CECIL TENDICK

Crit Haneline, who ran Purity Cleaners in Jacksonville for many years and who was one of our aldermen before he moved to Deland, Florida, some 18 months ago was held up and robbed last week.

The Deland Sun-News had a story about it:

John's Package Store was robbed late Wednesday night for the fourth time in recent years, with the operator trading shots with the fleeing robber.

This is what happened about 11 p.m. at the store on South Boulevard, said police.

Crit Haneline, manager of the store, which is owned by George Michaelos, said a man, height six feet two inches, asked for a half-pint of Seagram's gin.

The man tendered two $1 bills with his left hand and pulled a .22-calibre blue-steel revolver from his pocket with his right hand.

The robber told Haneline to put the money in the cash register in a paper bag, and then went out a side door and ran west on Waldo Avenue. Haneline got his gun out of his pocket, went into the street, and fired one shot at the robber, who fired one shot back.

The amount of money taken in the holdup wasn't disclosed. The robber wore blue pants and a thin blue jacket, with a zipper front and hood, according to the police department.

Crit's personal associates in Jacksonville can't be surprised that he had a gun in his pocket. He always had one, on the advice of his grandfather, Crit, of Sinclair township, Morgan county. Crit, the elder, was by all odds the best constable and deputy sheriff this county ever had. All the sheriff had to do was to wire Crit that some man in his area was wanted, and in came the man. Once he chased a man from Sinclair to Franklin, all on foot, and brought him in alive, punctured just a little in the right leg.

Fighting Our Way Toward Peace

Not since 1953 has an Independence Day found this nation with so many of its young men, so much of its common treasury, involved in the deadly business of a shooting war in a far-off, foreign land.

Thirteen years ago, however, the Korean War was grinding to a close. Months of frustrating negotiations were to result in a few weeks in an armistice which, if it did not solve the military stalemate, at least brought the fighting to an end.

Today in Viet Nam, there is no prospect of armistice nor any negotiations in progress that hold out even the hope of armistice. No one — presidents, premiers, secretaries and generals not excepted — knows when such negotiations will begin, as they must, or when peace will finally come to Viet Nam, as it must.

Nevertheless, there are a few faint signs and indications of something like peace on the horizon. It depends upon which direction men look, and which direction they turn their energies.

The Soviets, for instance, though they do not share our desires for a free and democratic Viet Nam, appear to be sincerely interested in a cessation of hostilities. For Viet Nam is a fuse and all fuses lead to the powder keg of World War III. This the Russians understand as well as anybody else.

The North Vietnamese continue to resist Red Chinese pressure to break with the Soviet Union, and China itself is undergoing a period of purge and turmoil within the ruling hierarchy.

It is a critical juncture, calling neither for an impatient escalation of the war to a new level nor a despairing surrender to the temptation to cut our losses and withdraw. We are there and there we must remain until the enemy is unmistakably convinced he cannot throw us out or wear us down by force of arms.

If it is determination and dedication on the part of this country that seem best calculated to bring eventual peace, then Americans this 4th can take new pride in the display of these virtues by their fighting men.

The recent example of Capt. William Carpenter, who called for a napalm strike against his own position in a desperate gamble to stave off the imminent massacre of the remnant of his troops by the Viet Cong, must command the awed respect of foe and countryman alike.

It is in the true tradition of all those brave men who, in all the wars in the 190 years of our national history, have comforted themselves above and beyond the call of normal duty.

It is because of men like this, and thousands of others whose names we may never know, that we are permitted to observe this Independence Day in freedom.

It is because of men like this that we can hope that we will celebrate the next Independence Day in both freedom and peace.

Electrics Are Coming

The car of the future may not be a batmobile, after all. Instead it may be an electric automobile, if the connotation of bud vases and little old ladies that this type has carried for 50 years can be overcome.

The proposed new electrics would be exhaust-free and quiet. A new type of battery permits economical recharges. The new design requires neither gearshift nor transmission. It is expected to have just one moving part, a powerful rotor. Top speeds are estimated at 60 miles per hour; travel range without battery recharging is 150 miles. Batteries could be revitalized in home garages, plug-in parking ramps, or service stations.

The lure of quiet, clean, inexpensive city driving is considerable. We suspect that many drivers would place their orders for the proposed car today, if they thought it would help get the electric car out of the experimental stage and onto the roadway — even if they had to take a bud vase along with it.

Dear Ann:

Belittling, Cruel Form of Disloyalty

By ANN LANDERS
Dear Ann Landers: I hope you will print my letter on the chance even one woman will recognize herself and stop belittling her husband.

For almost 50 years my mother has chopped up my father with her razor-sharp tongue. I have with her razor-sharp tongue. I have with her razor-sharp tongue. I have with her razor-sharp tongue.

Doesn't a wife realize that every time she attacks her husband in the presence of family, neighbors or friends she diminishes not him, but herself? My parents are old now, but my sisters and I still dread to go home. It's heartbreaking to see my mother still ripping into dad — scolding, berating, needling, attacking. He sits in silence, never defending himself, not even bothering to correct her wild exaggerations. What a saint he must be to have taken such abuse for almost a quarter of a century!

Put this letter in your own words, Ann, but print it. It could do a lot of good. —TOO CLOSE FOR COMFORT

Dear Too Close: "You" words were excellent. And here they are—just as you wrote them. If the shoe fits, ladies—take the shoe off.

Dear Ann: My husband's oldest brother is divorced. When he got out of the army six months ago we let him move into our two-bedroom apartment. He pays one-third of the rent and utilities.

This brother has the morals of a tomat. He runs around with the worst chippies in town — some of them professionals. It makes me sick that he brings these tramps to our apartment and forces us to sit in the park, or in a movie or coffee shop until after midnight.

My husband says I am being childish and that it is not right to interfere in the life of an adult relative, especially since he is paying part of the rent. What do you say? —SPLIT LEVEL WIFE

Dear Split Level: Your husband is right. When you allowed the tomat to move in and pay part of your rent it became "his" place, too.

How did you manage the rent before your brother-in-law came on the scene? Invite the bum to find a place of his own immediately so you and your husband can get back to decent and respectable living.

Dear Ann Landers: My husband parks himself in front of the TV 10 minutes before the game starts to make sure everything is in perfect order. The minute the game begins he turns on the radio. If you haven't heard two announcers screaming at the same time you are lucky. I can't understand one word either of them is saying. My husband insists he understands them both perfectly.

If it's a double-header or a 12- or 13-inning game I have to bring his dinner on a tray. If I utter one word, he shushes me up and says, "Later, dear." I hope the house doesn't start to burn during a game because I couldn't get the message through to him.

How can I make my husband see that he is being selfish and inconsiderate? —MARRIED TO A BASEBALL NUT

Dear Married: You can't — and the sooner you accept the fact, the better.

I can think of worse things than having a husband in the next room listening to and looking at a baseball game. You've got high class worries. Honey.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Gets Rich Going Around In Circles

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP) — It's hard to get rich going around in circles.

But that's how Francis Barry became a millionaire.

At 58, self-made as any man can be, he is a major power on the New York waterfront. He is the president and chief owner of three shipping companies — the Circle Line, which carries sightseers around Manhattan; the Statue of Liberty ferry, and the famed old Hudson River Day Line.

Last year our 15 vessels carried about 2½ million passengers," said Barry, not without pride. That's almost three times as many as entered or left the port of New York by sea.

Son of a stevedore who finally achieved an Irish immigrant's dream of glory by buying his own saloon, Barry was born and raised here in Hell's Kitchen, where a lad to survive had to be quick on his feet and fast with his fists.

"We never had any money," he said, "but since the neighbors weren't too well-heeled it didn't matter. I suppose we were poor but didn't know it. We lived in a old cold-water tenement that's still standing. Every Saturday morning a man would come out of the barber shop downstairs and throw 20 or 30 pennies in the air."

"What a scramble! That was the big day of the week for us kids."

Barry isn't a high school dropout. He never got that far. He reached his educational peak at 13, when he finished parochial school.

"I played Abraham Lincoln in the graduation play, was elected president of the class, and ran the 75- and 100-yard dash," he recalled.

"I had a scholarship to high school but felt I couldn't afford to take it."

Barry, who had been pushing trunks part-time through the clothing district since he was 10, felt he was in clover when he landed a $12-a-week job as a messenger for the U.S. Customs Service.

But 10 years later he had worked up to $100 a month. Neighbors thought he was out of his mind when he left the government payroll to work for a customs brokerage firm.

In a few years, Barry became a partner and then sole owner of one of the largest customs brokerage firms in the nation, representing some 33 steamship lines.

He surprised others in the field by taking in three partners and giving them a 49 per cent interest in the firm.

"It pays to keep good men with you," he remarked. "That's better than having to compete against them."

With several colleagues he founded the Circle Line in 1945 with a 180-foot fishing boat and a war surplus boat. Now he operates 17 vessels.

75 YEARS AGO

Yesterday there was a merry war among two courtesans who inhabit the flats on South Main-street. A large woman who lives at Laura Burton's ranch accused one of Fannie Somers' girls of stealing from her a pair of black and red striped stockings. A lively hair-pulling ensued. Later on the big girl swore out two warrants, charging theft and assault. Chief McAvoy went to make the arrest, and brought back with him, for good measure, a man found hiding under the bed of the defendant. For some time the latter could not think of his name, but finally remembered he went by the handle of John Smith. Undoubtedly he knows his own name, but he bears a striking resemblance to the man who rolls cigars in Cassell's front window.

FINDING THE WAY

All Honor to Our Flag

Dr. Loew

By RALPH W. LOEW, D.D., Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

On the day of national remembrance, the flags fly in many places, especially on the graves of the men who served their country in times past. Now, for a brief moment, there is the renewal of the symbol of respect. On such a day, I remember Pedro.

I never knew him personally. He was a lad in Chicago high school class, a Cuban by birth, who was now rebuilding his life in the crowded, tumultuous neighborhood of this large city. One day, he handed in a paper, his response to an assignment. It revealed so much of himself that it is worth sharing on this national holiday. He called it:

THE FLAG

I hear some people say they are too tired. Or they don't want to salute the flag. When they come out of the ROTC room. Or when they pledge allegiance.

Well, I will tell you why I don't mind to salute the American flag. The flag is not my own, but I am Living under its protection. When I salute your flag, I don't think it like a piece of cloth.

Nor do I feel grievous. I feel proud and safe. And because I come from another country.

Every time I see your flag I remember how many people have died for it. And what some people still do in many countries.

To keep this flag free. I tell you this because I know it.

I saw it. A boy no more than twelve years old.

Dying in the street with the flag held high in his hand. To keep it safe from dust and blood.

To see it fly free. Maybe because you don't know what this means. And I hope you never experience it.

You do not care. Well, I tell you when I was in my country.

I think the same way, too. But I tell you that if I see my flag again.

Every morning When I wake up I salute my flag.

Pedro's essay is not momentous as a literary document but it is his sincere statement. In so brief a time, he had seen so much, and having seen, looks about him with gratitude.

I hope that he has found fellow-citizens in this land, under this flag, who make their patriotism a meaningful experience.

We need these unashamed gestures of patriotism, supported by citizens who give of their substance, share of their energy, adventure with a new lively optimism, laboring within the crowded neighborhoods and challenging places of the cities where millions of youngsters such as Pedro search for something to respect. Every morning requires that devotion to a quality of living that enables Pedro to stand at salute!

Age of Rising Doubts

By MRS. MURIEL LAWRENCE, Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR MRS. LAWRENCE: I'm tired of being called jealous by my husband. He calls me this because I had to tell my sister to leave our home. She's unmarried and came to live with us a year ago. To make her feel welcome my husband kissed her goodby when he kissed me, look her with us wherever we went. Soon she started telling me what his favorite foods were and would run out to the yard to help him when he was working there. Was I wrong to tell her to leave? I'm 50 years old and have four grown children.

ANSWER: You're hooked on a word, friend. "Jealous" is just a word. It doesn't matter. What matters is that your husband is using it to reproach you for depriving him of your sister's admiring attention.

He's telling you he needs it. Are you willing to give it to him? To run out to the yard yourself to help him when he's working there? Can you see past these accusations of jealousy to their appeal for the kind of attention your sister gave him, the kind that told him that he was a desirable male?

I don't know whether you are or not. It's a cliché you won't give it to him if you resent his need of it.

Look. You say you're 50. Grow up then and look at the truth that middle-age is the time of life when dissatisfactions with ourselves and our choices begin to make themselves felt. That includes marital ones and unless we're babies, we understand this doubtfulness as part of the whole business of middle-aged inventory-taking.

It's a critical time for all. We tend to feel cheated, restless, much less certain of our worth than we used to be.

Your own hurt at your husband's accusations tells you that you yourself feel cheated; have begun to question things—your husband's affection, for example — that you used to take for granted.

So his protests at losing your sister's encouraging attention have nothing to do with your sister. It has to do with your growing middle-aged need for reassurance that he is a valuable person. Like you, like me, he's begun to wonder if he is.

This is a human problem. It has nothing to do with sex except for the confusing male tendency to sexualize our common, human need for a loved person's affirmation of our importance when we have begun to doubt it.

THE AMERICAN NATIONAL GAME OF BASE BALL

Messrs. Currier & Ives presented this lithograph in full colors to the baseball fans of 1866 and it proved to be one of their best sellers.

Baseball, in 1866, was "genteel amateur recreation and polite society intercourse." Challenges and replies were made with the courtesy of the duelling field; there was no booing of player or umpire; applause for a spectacular play was limited to handclaps; and "after the fatigues of the day were over" the gentlemen retired to the best hotel in town for a big dinner and a series of toasts.

You will note that each infielder literally played his base and that the shortstop was just that, playing will in. The pitcher, also known as the picker or feeder, tossed the ball underhanded. There were no bean balls or power throws in those days. In fact the curve ball wasn't invented for another 20 years or so.

There was no base on balls. The feeder had to keep throwing until the batter saw one he liked. Three swings were out.

If he hit, fair or foul, he was out if the ball was caught on the fly, or first bounce.

Before 1866 nobody wore a glove or mitt, but in that year catchers began using them. Before that the catcher stood 12 to 15 feet behind the "striker" and caught the throw on the first bounce.

See that frock-coated gentleman to the right of the plate. He's the umpire. And if anybody booed him, well the culprit would be out socially for a long time to come.

The Hardins Best The Capitals

A hundred years ago today the talk in Jacksonville was the mighty hot weather and that glorious drubbing the Hardin Base Ball Club gave the Springfield Capitals on Saturday.

It was the town's first inter-city baseball game and the 80 to 39 victory was most pleasing to everybody. Heck, what was Springfield, anyway? It should never have named the state capital, and wouldn't have been if it hadn't been for the wire-pulling of that shyster lawyer, Abe Lincoln. The capital should have been moved from Vandalia to Illopolis, the exact center of the state. That's where the capital should have been, especially since the entire town site and many adjoining acres were owned at the time by Governor Joseph Duncan and other Jacksonville gentlemen.

The interest in baseball was the craze of the period. It was played throughout the Civil war by men weary of camp life, men with "nothing to do," as they wrote from day to day in their diaries.

The first Jacksonville baseball club was organized in the courthouse at the southwest corner of the square in the spring of 1866. The principal promoter was Joseph J. Ironmonger, co-publisher of the Jacksonville Journal. He was fresh from Peoria where the game had been introduced and welcomed the previous year.

The original members of the club, mostly all clerks in the stores on North Main street and around the square, named it in honor of Col. John J. Hardin, the Jacksonville hero of the Mexican war.

Within a few weeks another club was organized by Illinois College men, the Hercules. Then another team, and then another one.

There were plenty of playing fields, as most any pasture would do, but the No. 1 field was Wolcott's pasture northeast of the Toledo, Wabash and Western railroad depot, which was then on North Main street. Later on when that section was subdivided and added to the city the southern boundary of the pasture was named Wolcott street.

By the middle of June the Hardins began feeling they were pretty good baseball players, so Secretary Ironmonger telegraphed a challenge to the Springfield team. It was immediately accepted and Saturday, June 30, was named the day.

The Illinois State Register had a good story about the event in afternoon edition of July 2. That the visiting club was well received is indicated by the fact that they were entertained in the finest and biggest house in town, that of former state auditor, Jesse K. Dubois, and that their dinner was prepared by that ace of caterers, Edward Luce.

Here's the Register story: THE BASEBALL MATCH ON SATURDAY LAST

The Hardins of Jacksonville Score Eighty Against the Capitals of Springfield Thirty-Nine. Crowds of Spectators Present.

The excitement and interest which has prevailed in the baseball circles of this city during the past month, seemed to have reached its height on Saturday last, on the occasion of the match game between the Hardin club of Jacksonville and the Capital club of this city, growing out of a challenge extended by the former and accepted by the latter about a week since.

On the morning set for the contest, the sun rose into a clear sky, giving promise of fair weather. The thermometer ranged quite low and very little wind was astir — everything in fact promising a propitious occasion for the game. About 10 o'clock A.M. the Hardins reached the city from Jacksonville by the T. W. & W. Railroad, and were met by the Capitals at the depot, and at once conducted out to their grounds at the terminus of the Capital Horse Railway.

During the forenoon both clubs were invited over to the residence of Hon. Jesse K. Dubois near by, and entertained up to about noon, when they returned to the Avenue House, and participated in the game.

At the close of the game, at half after six o'clock, the Hardins took supper at the Avenue House, and left the city for home by the first train. That the match will be repeated at a future date we have no hesitation in stating, and when such transpires the results may be more creditable to the Capitals, who only lack the practice and discipline of their opponents.

Yes, there was a return match, in August, with two big dinners and many toasts at the Dunlap House. And Jacksonville won again.

News, Views Century Ago

From the Jacksonville Sentinel: We learn that a young Portuguese named Joseph Silver, was kicked by a horse on last Friday, and died on Saturday of the injuries received.

The old frame buildings on the north-east corner of the square were sold on last Saturday, and are being removed from the lot they have so long disfigured to give place to a new business block. A new business block is also going up just below Stacy's corner, on South Mauvaisterre street.

A new kind of potato bug has made its appearance among our potatoes, doing much damage wherever it appears. We have seen the bug and have found it to be very vigilant in destroying the vine on which a large number will swarm, and killing it before they leave. The bug is about half an inch in length, of a bright yellow, tinged with brown, with black stripes running in rows lengthwise of the body, and a small black head. The bug in shape resembles the common "lady bug," only much larger.

The mail route between this city and Waverly, via Franklin, was discontinued on the 1st inst. and the mail matter sent from here to those places now goes by way of Springfield and Auburn.

From the Carrollton Gazette: White Hall locals —

GYPSESIES — A band of fifteen or twenty gypsies have made their appearance in our town, just below the corporation line. Our citizens had better take in their clothes from the lines and see that their hen houses are locked while these vagabonds remain in the vicinity.

REMOVAL — The old brick building which has stood for thirty years between the Main Street House and Judd & Reno's store, has this week raised anchor and got underweigh for some more retired spot in the suburbs of the town. Its place will immediately be occupied by the new building.

ELOPEMENT — The example of last week was followed by another case of a similar character this week, and with equal success. The newly-made groom left here some two weeks since, ostensibly for Missouri or Kansas, to the great satisfaction of the young lady's parents. On Monday afternoon, however, the young lady went out for a walk and extended her pedestrian exercises as far as Roodhouse Station, where, strange to say, she met the one of all others for whom she seemed to care the most, with a justice of peace, they having the license, and almost in the twinkling of an eye, the twain were made one, and left for parts unknown. Of course the parents are on the rampage.

From the Beardstown Central Illinoisian: The wheat crop is light in this and adjoining counties.

Weather has been remarkably hot for the past two weeks, the thermometer standing at 94 to 100 in the shade.

So far as town officers are concerned, the city of Beardstown is in good hands: The mayor is Charles E. Yeck. City attorney, Garland Pollard. Police Magistrate, Gell Seeger. Marshal & Supervisor, John Davis. Treasurer, James C. Leonard. Wharf Master, Chris Mertz.

BRIMFUL and running over

By Jim Brim

Late summer is a good time to renovate pasture. If your pasture is worn out and doesn't provide the feed it should — tear it up and start fresh. You'll be dollars ahead.

Here are some things to think about:

First — Plan now.

Second — Pour on some fertilizer. A soil test will tell you what you need. Most permanent pastures are low in fertility and pastures can't yield any better than the potential of the soil on which it grows.

Lime is important. You can't grow high producing pastures on acid soils. You need potassium and phosphorus in sizable amounts usually. You won't need to worry about nitrogen unless you seed pure grass.

Third — Kill the competition. Tear up the weeds. You may want to use a chemical such as dalapon along with cultivation.

Fourth — Plant a good pasture mixture. Don't depend on one species. Seed a mixture of both grasses and legumes for good yields throughout the summer. Legumes you might use are alfalfa, red clover, ladino, lespedeza. Grasses, brome and orchardgrass, fescue. These grasses compete with legumes but are good yielders.

Fifth — Control grazing. Let the stand become established. You can easily lose a good seeding by over-grazing in the fall of the first year. To make efficient use of pastures, rotate them.

Sixth — Control weeds. Clipping helps improve pasture quality, removes competition and encourages more growth of desirable plants.

Take care of your pastures and they will take care of you.

Sorghum-sudan grass crosses are excellent one year producers of forage. If you need extra pasture look into using this grass.

Now you should.

try a watermelon.

make wise use of water.

keep your hogs well watered and shaded.

drink plenty of water on these hot days.

read labels on chemicals thoroughly.

have a sane Fourth of July.

The Cow — The Clock

CORVALLIS, Ore. — University of Illinois dairy research shows that dairymen can milk at intervals as unequal as 9 and 15 hours with no more than a 2 to 3 percent drop in production of cows at peak lactation.

TIME INTERVALS	MILK lb.	%FAT	FAT lb.
AM 12-12	AM 38.79	3.67	1.42
PM 12-12	PM 33.59	3.72	1.25
Total 12-12	72.38	3.69	2.67
AM 12-15	AM 43.13	3.23	1.39
PM 12-15	PM 37.24	4.43	1.21
Total 12-15	80.37	3.70	2.60

"Uneven milking intervals showed no effect on milk production for cows studied over a complete lactation, and no effect on butterfat percentage for either peak production or complete lactation."

"The study indicates that milking at uneven intervals is economically feasible. And it gives the dairymen much more flexibility in his total farming operation," dairy scientist S. L. Spahr said last week during the annual meeting of the American Dairy Science association.

"As a result of the research, we have changed our milking hours for the U. of I. herd from a 4:00 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. schedule to a 6:00 a.m. and 3:30 p.m. schedule," he explained.

"Since the change, we've found no noticeable production difference that we can attribute to milking interval."

Spahr cited two U. of I. tests aimed at studying the effects of uneven milking intervals. The first test included two complete lactations for 82 cows. Researchers milked the cows at 12-12-hour intervals during one lactation and 9-15-hour intervals during the other one. There were no significant production differences.

"We conducted a second study to find the effect of unequal milking intervals."

al milking intervals on cows at peak production," Spahr explained.

In that test, U. of I. researchers selected 20 Brown Swiss and Holstein cows producing at least 55 pounds of milk daily. They tested all cows on both 12-12-hour and 9-15-hour intervals. Results are shown in the table.

"The cows averaged 72.38 pounds of milk daily while being milked at 12-12-hour intervals and 70.37 pounds when they were milked at 9-15-hour intervals," Spahr said. "The production difference of about 2 pounds of milk daily was statistically significant."

"However, neither fat percentages nor milk fat yield differences were significant for the two milking intervals. Fat percentages were 3.69 for the 12-12-hour intervals and 3.70 for the 9-15-hour schedule.

The study showed that the milk fat percentage of individual milkings was markedly affected by the milking interval. Milk obtained after the long interval contained 3.23 percent fat. Fat rose to 4.42 percent after the 9-hour interval.

Editor's Note: This article is interesting.

Charles S. Black, on his farm just north of town, proved this point more than 50 years ago. He milked his cows at 4 a.m. and at noon. Production was good, the cows thrived. But yet, somehow, any man with a cow figured he had to milk at sunrise and again at sunset.

Today most farms in Morgan county don't have a cow on the place.

WORLD FOOD CRISIS!

Over one billion people in the world, one third of the population, face hunger every day and another billion have diets that are far from the minimum needed for a full active life. Too many of these people's food is not a matter of price — rather is there any I can eat.

Forbes magazine in a recent article concludes that it will take great effort to reverse the current trend in parts of the world where hunger is actually increasing. That the know how and enterprise of American businessmen will be a key factor in winning this food battle. It will take the team work of farmers and agribusinessmen — plus a speed up of programs of self help in developing countries — to win the war against hunger.

WHO WILL HAVE THE FIRST SST?

By WALTER B. HENDRICKSON JR.

St. Louis in the mid-1970s. foreign air lines. These lines are also ordering the American SSTs. Eastern Airlines, for example, has ordered two Concorde and two of the larger American SSTs.

Not Rivals
U.S. British and French Busy
Both the United States, and the British and French are working on the development of SuperSonic Transports (SSTs). At present the British and French Concorde seems to be slightly in the lead. Its makers plan to have it flying by February, 1968, while Lockheed plans to start building its SST around 1967 and have it in operation by the early 70s.

Already some 50 Concorde have been ordered by U.S. and

The Concorde is expected to be available for commercial service late in 1971 or early in 1972. It will fly at Mach 2.2 (2.2 times the speed of sound)—or 1,450 miles an hour at cruising elevations above 55,000 feet. The U.S.-built supersonic transports will be ready for service in 1974. They will have a speed range of 2.7 to three times the speed of sound, and have approximately twice the Concorde's payload.

The Concorde can carry 138 passengers in all-tourist class accommodations. The Lockheed SST will carry 255 passengers, 26 first class, and 229 tourist.

American Craft Larger
Eastern believes the greater speed and capacity of the American supersonics will be an advantage on the longer hauls with more passengers. Concorde will do best on routes not quite as long with fewer passengers.

Of the three planes the Concorde is the most conventional in appearance. It is a simple delta winged craft. The Lockheed SST uses a double delta which starts near the nose and slants sharply back about half way where it then widens out into a conventional delta wing.

Unusual Design
Boeing's SST design is the most unusual. It has movable wings. As this giant jet whistles down the runway its wings stick almost straight out from each side. Then as it climbs toward the edge of space the wings are gradually folded back as the huge liner reaches its 2,100

JERRY'S DISCOVERY

By John Rankin

The sun was down but the heat of the day lingered, and there was a quietness in the air as Jerry, a sturdy 12-year-old paused on the railroad track to peer down at the forsaken little shack in the valley. Things just didn't seem the same since the old prospector had loaded all his belongings on his pack mule and took off for the mountains again.

Then as he continued to gaze wistfully at the crudely-fashioned little lean-to that he himself had helped build, Jerry recalled with a trace of loneliness that only a few months ago Mr. Ike's advanced years had finally prompted him to come down out of the hills and take up a residence at the very edge of the city limits.

And he'd still be here if the police had kept off his back about some crazy law or something, he resolved with a trace of bitterness. Then with a wistful shrug of his shoulders he turned from the scene and started for home.

Lonely Cabin
Mom was in the kitchen when Jerry got home. She turned from the stove as he paused in the doorway and asked simply, "Has old Mr. Clanton returned to his little cabin?"

Jerry shook his head. "Guess he'll never show up now since he knows the sheriff will slap him in jail again if he can lay his hands on him," he said and went on to the living room.

A little later as the family sat down to supper Dad looked at Jerry and said, "So your old sidekick is still a fugitive from justice, eh?"

Mom gave Dad a sharp look. "Perhaps it would be more fitting to say he's just an illiterate old prospector that does not understand the ways of a modern society, and is fleeing from what he considers a grave injustice," she said with feeling. "Especially since the whole thing stems from nothing more than letting his mule graze on city property."

"Big Deal!" Jerry blustered. "Way out on a dead end street and not a house in sight. Besides Mr. Ike didn't know it was against the law and..."

"And when the old jasper ignored one summons after another the police slapped him in jail for contempt of court," Dad put in quickly.

Mom looked across the table at Dad. "But his cell was empty the very next morning, and I understand the door had not been tampered with." "Shades of Houdini!" Dad said with a nodding grin. "When the jailer went to his cell the door was still locked but the old geezer was gone. That was a month ago and the sheriff still hasn't figured it out."

"And the sheriff will have a tough time trying to find Mr. Ike," Jerry chimed in. "He knows the mountains better than anybody, and I'll bet a dozen men couldn't corner him up there now."

The Stopping Of The Waters

By Mary Pence Claywell

The rain came down in torrents, where an old one sat alone. And the "swish" of rising waters, she could hear. And the winds and claps of thunder. And the fire-streaks in the sky. Numbered her heart, and shook her soul with fear: And when she tried to pray, Dear Lord, it sounded much the same As the waters that were swishing 'round the door. And she realized her prayer, was not a prayer, O Lord, at all. Just a frightened, stormy out-pour nothing more: She paused beside a table, where the family BIBLE stood. And an Unseen, Soothing Hand, upon her lay. Then picking up the Bible, from its place upon the stand, She whispered softly, "Dear Lord, point the way." Then there before her, lay The Book: Her heart had never beat so fast before. The Book of Psalms was open. At the "Thirty-Fourth" ... 'tis true. And her fingers clutched the edge of stanza "Four": Then suddenly, the earth was quiet and far away, were tears: "I sought the Lord, He heard me, and delivered me from fears." Then on and on, her eyes did seek the swishing rain grew quiet. The waters stopped, OUTSIDE the DOOR. And came NOT in, that night: This story is, indeed, a FACT and few would dare deny That's "GOD'S EYES ARE ON HIS EARS OPEN, TO THEIR CRY!"

Let's Go Birding

Our Favorite June Bird

By Emma Mae Leonard

During the nesting time of birds our guess is that the wren is the favorite bird. This conjecture is based upon the many wren houses of varied assortments fastened to a tree, a porch, or a post close enough to the window so that the owners may watch the antics of this little brown tail-tipped bird. In fact the wren has become almost an integral part of the yard, garden, orchard, or farm.

In May and June bird conversation often centers around the tragedy of a wren's nest. Even the family's favorite pet, the cat that can do no wrong in spite of the feline fickleness, may get into trouble when he kills just for fun. Many a child has been punished for destroying a wren's nest.

Some boys may have lost their reputation of being honorable young people because they have been caught shooting a wren. We heard one person in Jacksonville say this June, "Such a murder should be punishable as surely as the murder of a human being." It seems that there were some boys just out of school indulging in that type of excitement, and the speaker had found one of her wrens dead near the wren house, dead from a boy's shooting prank. Her heart also went out to the starving baby wrens.

What About House?
Another wren topic is "Why haven't the wrens used my box that I have paid a lot of money for?" Yes, there are many attractive wren boxes on the market that become mere ornaments, to the owner's disappointment. We don't know the secret of the bird's choice, but our House Wren isn't too fastidious about its selection of the house and its premises. It may even be a tin can, a cigar box, an old hat, or the pocket of a discarded coat.

The one thing we are sure of is that the wren is beloved by the majority of people. Why? There can be several reasons. It is comparatively tiny. It talks with its expressive tail. Its bubbling lively song runs on most of the day. It is always "on the go." It is sassy and sputtering; finicky and fliriting; cocky and coy.

Easy To Know
And the wren is easy to recognize. We imagine almost as many people feel as well acquainted with the wren as with the sparrow. Most people also think that we have only one kind of wren, the House Wren, just as we have only one kind of sparrow, the House or English Sparrow.

In the wren family, however, there are over 250 different forms throughout the world. Already in 1960 we have seen or heard six different species in our area. In our next article we shall introduce them to you.

MAN FROM SPACE

Once I saw a flying saucer heading right toward my house. So I hurried to call the police. The police got there in time to save my house. We pulled with a rope. The rope broke and we fell in my burglar trap. We fell down, down, down, to the bottom! But there was a shovel in my trap. We dug a tunnel in it. The flying saucer had already landed. The men from Outer Space had ray-guns and we only had bullet-guns. I was so scared I went back in the tunnel. When I came out, there was no flying saucer; there were no policemen, but there was one Outer Space man left. The flying saucer had forgotten that one man. Somebody had taken his gun. And this is how I met my first space man. Ricky Peterson Second Grade Winchester School Teacher Margaret King

The duck play is sometimes just as valuable at a suit contract as in no-trump. It is a lot harder to recognize.

South lost no time playing dummy's ace of diamonds on West's ten. He lost a good deal of time trying to make the contract later on.

At trick two he led a trump. West took his ace and led a second diamond. South ruffed and started to draw trumps. When East showed out on the third trump lead South came to a complete stop.

Finally he did draw West's last trump but he had to use his own last trump to do it. Then he led a heart. East took his ace and cashed his last three diamonds for down two.

If South had recognized the possibility of ducking his first diamond in order to cut communications he would have made the hand. Furthermore, he could duck without losing a trick. Barring something unusual one of his three clubs was going to be a sure loser eventually.

Suppose South ducks the first diamond. If East holds a six-card suit he can give his partner a ruff but with six diamonds to the king-queen-jack the chances are that East would have found a diamond rebid.

So South ducks the first diamond and discards a club on the second diamond. Then he knocks out West's ace of trumps. West can't lead a diamond to force South and South makes his game.

 A—You have a pleasant problem because either two no-trump, three diamonds or three no-trump is a satisfactory bid. Our recommendation is that you content yourself with two no-trump.

 You bid two no-trump and your partner bids three diamonds. What do you do now?

Goldberg Nears End Of First Year In UN

By WILLIAM N. OATIS
UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — As he nears the end of his first year as U.S. chief delegate to the United Nations, Ambassador Arthur J. Goldberg says he is ready to remain in the post "as long as the President wants me to stay."

In a half-hour interview, he brushed aside reports that he is unhappy in his job and that he is feuding with Secretary of State Dean Rusk. He expressed hope that after 11 months in office he is doing a useful job.

He hinted that he sometimes disagrees with Rusk, but denied that he wants Rusk's job or any other. He declined comment on the U.S. bombing of Hanoi and Haiphong oil facilities.

A U.S. delegation spokesman told correspondents published reports "of Mr. Goldberg's happiness or unhappiness I would characterize as hogwash." The reports said Goldberg is unhappy because Rusk is against scaling down the Vietnamese war and is keeping U.N. Secretary-General U Thant from President Johnson.

Goldberg himself did not reply directly when asked if he regretted he had left the Supreme Court to come here, saying: "Once I make a decision, I make a decision. It's kind of futile to look back. You have to look forward in life."

"I'm a grown man, I've made a decision and I'm busy engaged in what I'm doing now." He said he still feels as he did last July 20, when he accepted the U.N. post and told White House reporters his Supreme Court service would always be "the most enjoyable experience" of his life.

"I took this job not to enjoy myself," he went on. "I took this because I thought it was a duty assignment for our country. I still think it is. I haven't changed my mind. Anything insinuating to the contrary is not well founded."

As to the reports he was displeased with Rusk, Goldberg declared: "I have no feud with the secretary of state. I express myself. He expresses himself. That's normal in the government. But we are very good friends. We have the most amicable and congenial relations."

"I also have no desire or ambition to become secretary of state or hold any other office other than the one I now hold."

"I entered upon it to help the country. Whether I am succeeding in helping the country is not for me but for others to judge. I hope I am."

The Auxiliary would appreciate it very much if you have a relative now serving in Viet Nam if you would send his address on a post card or by letter to Amvets Auxiliary Post 100, 120 East Court Street, Jacksonville, so he may receive packages as they are sent out.

PARADE POINTERS

You're a shutterbug and you love a parade? Great! The season's just getting started. But for making the most of picture possibilities, keep in mind these pointers passed on by Eastman Kodak Co.

Select a good spot, on a corner preferably, to get the parade coming and going. Otherwise you may end up with nothing but a mass of retreating backs.

Try some new angles for shots. You avoid having the same background in all your pictures and may end up with some really distinctive photos.

You can appear to stop the parade in its tracks by shooting at a three-quarter angle and waiting for action to reach its peak.

If you're using a focusing camera, get in a good position and pick a certain spot to focus on before the activities start.

Baltimore Sweeps Pair From Twins

BALTIMORE (AP) — Left-hander Billy Short, making his first major league appearance in four years, pitched a six-hitter as the American League-leading Baltimore Orioles edged Minnesota 2-0 Friday night and completed a doubleheader sweep.

The Orioles rode home runs by Frank Robinson and Sam

Bowens to a 4-1 opening game victory, then came back and scored both their nightcap runs on a single by Brooks Robinson and a double by Bowens.

Called up from Rochester of the International League earlier in the week, Short last pitched in the majors with Baltimore in 1962 and last won a game in the majors when he pitched for the New York Yankees in 1960. The southpaw did not allow a hit until the fourth inning. He struck out five and allowed only one walk.

Baltimore picked up its two runs in the first on singles by Luis Aparicio and Brooks Robinson and a double by Bowens coupled with an error by Rich Rollins.

But Minnesota pitcher Jim Merritt retired the next 19 batters before being lifted for a pinch hitter in the eighth inning.

In the first game, the Twins took an early 1-0 lead in the first on a double by Tony Oliva and a single by Harmon Killebrew.

The Orioles tied it in the second on singles by Brooks Robinson, Dave Johnson and Blair.

Steve Barber, who gave up eight hits in 5 1-3 innings, was credited with his ninth victory against two defeats. Barber gave way to reliever Eddie Fisher in the sixth after suffering a pulled muscle in his left elbow.

Perry, Marichal Potent 1-2 Punch

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The most potent one-two pitching punch in the majors now belongs to the San Francisco Giants because of the sudden development of Gaylord Perry.

At the start of the season, the list of reliable San Francisco starters began and ended with Juan Marichal, 13-3.

But Perry has come back from a dismal last season, two injuries and the bullpen; until he now owns an 11-1 mark with a 2.23 earned-run average. The New York Mets beat him May 15.

Sandy Koufax of the Los Angeles Dodgers had a 14-2 record through Thursday. But his fellow-holdout, Don Drysdale, who won 23 last year, was only 5-10. This helps explain why the Giants are in first place in the National League and the Dodgers are not.

The Giants always figured Perry would be a standout performer, starting in 1958 when they gave him a reported bonus of $90,000.

Looked Like Bad Bet
The money looked ill-spent last year when Perry posted an 8-12 mark with a 4.18 ERA and 21 homers surrendered in 195 2-3 innings. By August he was exiled to the bullpen.

This season, Perry has given up only one homer in 96 2-3 innings and it didn't hurt him. Batters have discovered they can't follow his hard slider and new sidearm deliveries.

"Jansen (pitching coach Larry) worked with me the last two years on the hard slider," Perry said. "It finally came to me."

The revelation occurred in the outfield at Phoenix during spring training while Perry was casually throwing the ball. The sidearm stuff he began to use as he gained confidence.

"I had thrown some sidearm but not as much as this year," Perry said. "It adds a couple of pitches out there and makes the

THE NEW LOOK in Baltimore—besides the hitting of Frank Robinson—includes the pitching of Eddie Watt. A rookie right-hander, Watt is only in his second year of pro ball and this season is one of the most effective relievers in the majors.

TWO FOR THE TITLE — Dennis Ralston, left, of Bakersfield, Calif., lost to Spain's Manuel Santana, right, in England for the highest honor in tennis — the Wimbledon title. Ralston was the first American in the men's singles championship game since Chuck McKinley won the title in 1963. Ralston beat South Africa's Cliff Drysdale to reach the finals while Santana topped Australia's Owen Davidson.

Santana Captures Wimbledon Crown

WIMBLEDON, England (AP) — Manuel Santana, the pride of Spain, out-manuevered Dennis Ralston of Bakersfield, Calif., 6-4, 11-9, 6-4 in a classic final Friday and brought the Wimbledon tennis title back to Europe after 12 years.

The grinning 28-year-old Spaniard won the crown — the world's most coveted tennis prize — with a blend of power and subtlety that made him a popular hero with the 15,000 fans. Yet for most of the match Ralston, 23, matched him shot for shot.

As the drama rose to its climax in the close and torrid atmosphere of Wimbledon's center court, Ralston's nerve failed him and he fell into double faults and volleying errors.

Santana kept going steadily with spin and drop, stop-volley and smash, and finally won in three straight sets. Yet each set was taut and finely balanced.

At the end Santana was given the most emotional reception any Wimbledon champion has received since Czech-born Jaroslav Drobný, who was the last European to win the title back in 1954.

He stepped forward, laughing with happiness, to accept the big silver trophy from Princess Marina, aunt of Queen Elizabeth, and the entire crowd stood and cheered.

Saturday's major attraction on the center court will be the bid of Billie Jean King of Long Beach, Calif., to defeat Maria Bueno of Brazil for the women's singles title.

Lillis' Double Pushes Houston To 12 Frame Win

HOUSTON (AP) — Bob Lillis' two-out double in the 12th inning drove in Bob Aspromonte with the winning run as Houston edged Cincinnati 2-1 Friday night.

Lillis' double came after Aspromonte singled and brought the victory to reliever Claude Raymond. Billy McCool took the loss.

The Reds, shut out on one hit through seven innings by Mike Cuellar, pushed across the tying run in the eighth inning when Leo Cardenas doubled with two out and pinch hitter Jim Coker followed with a single.

Cuellar, unbeaten and looking for his seventh victory, kept the Reds hitless after that until he left for a pinch hitter in the 11th inning.

Shannon's homer, his fifth of the year, followed a single by Orlando Cepeda and dealt Koufax his third loss against 14 victories. His only other losses this year were 3-1 against Cincinnati and 3-0 against Houston.

Jackson, now 7-6, pitched a six-hitter, in beating the Dodgers for only the second time in 12 lifetime decisions. Only one Dodger advanced as far as second base and that was the result of a first-inning error. Jackson was aided by three doubleplays.

Shannon's Homer Carries Cards Over Koufax, 2-0

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Mike Shannon clouted a two-run homer off Sandy Koufax in the seventh inning, bringing Al Jackson and the St. Louis Cardinals a 2-0 victory over the Los Angeles Dodgers Friday night.

Shannon's homer, his fifth of the year, followed a single by Orlando Cepeda and dealt Koufax his third loss against 14 victories. His only other losses this year were 3-1 against Cincinnati and 3-0 against Houston.

Jackson, now 7-6, pitched a six-hitter, in beating the Dodgers for only the second time in 12 lifetime decisions. Only one Dodger advanced as far as second base and that was the result of a first-inning error. Jackson was aided by three doubleplays.

Upset By Clay's Delay Of Status

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — The chairman of Cassius Clay's draft board said Friday he's upset by the delay in determining the heavyweight champion's military status.

Clay's request that he be reclassified as a conscientious objector has been under investigation by the Justice Department since May.

"I am very upset," commented J. Allen Sherman. "I don't understand the delay and I certainly don't like it."

He said if the Justice Department is looking into Clay's religious affiliation with the Black Muslims, there should be a file readily available.

Liston KO Winner In Comeback

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Sonny Liston, the former world heavyweight champion, opened a comeback campaign by knocking out Gerhard Zech of Germany in the seventh round here Friday night.

Liston, of Denver, Colo., weighed 221, Zech 226.

A crowd of 12,000 saw Liston, who won the title from Floyd Patterson and then lost it to Cassius Clay, knocked out the German with a short left-right combination at 1:11 of the seventh round.

The fight was scheduled as a 10-round.

It was Liston's first fight since his controversial one minute knockout by Clay in their return world title bout in May 1965 at Lewiston, Maine.

Fryman Faces Only 27 In 1-Hitter 12-0

NEW YORK (AP) — Rookie Woody Fryman allowed only one hit — a leadoff single by Ron Hunt in the first inning — and faced the minimum 27 batters in pitching the red-hot Pittsburgh Pirates to a 12-0 triumph over the New York Mets Friday night.

Fryman, a 23-year-old southpaw, retired every man he faced after Hunt hit a bouncer up the middle that barely eluded shortstop Gene Alley. Hunt

CLEVELAND (AP) — Sam McDowell, making his first start in two weeks, pitched a two-hitter and struck out 13 for his first complete-game victory since

McDowell, who has been plagued by arm trouble, allowed two scattered singles and walked just one while bringing his season record to 6-2. It was his first victory since June 11.

Rocky Colavito drove in four runs with a single and his 15th homer, a two-run shot in the sixth off loser Dean Chance, to pace the Cleveland attack.

White Sox Edge Boston, 2-1, In 13th Inning

CHICAGO (AP) — Pinch runner Gary Peters raced home on a passed ball by Boston catcher Mike Ryan with two out in the 13th inning, giving the Chicago White Sox a 2-1 victory over the Red Sox Friday night.

John Romano led off the 13th with an infield hit off reliever Lee Stange and Peters ran for him. Don Buford sacrificed and Peters moved to third on a groundout before scoring when Ryan let a pitch get by him.

Darrell Brandon, making his first major-league start after 23 relief appearances for Boston, blanked the White Sox on four hits until the eighth, when pinch hitter Smokey Burgess walked, pinch runner Al Weis stole second and Tommy Agee tied the score 1-1 with a single to left.

Wright, Spuzich Tied For Lead In Women's Open

MINNEAPOLIS (AP) — Four-time champion Mickey Wright, collapsing with five three-putt greens, and steady shooting Sandra Spuzich, a lesser known pro from Indianapolis, tied for the 36-hole lead with five-over-par 149s in the United States Women's Open Golf Tournament Friday.

Although scores perked on Hazeltine National Golf Club's tricky par 72 course, there was a general howl over the hard, spike-marked greens.

Almost four hours after Miss Spuzich, 29, added a two-over-par 74 to her opening 75, Miss Wright struggled her opening 71 and still the tourney's only subpar round.

Deadlocked at 151 were defending champion Carol Mann, two strokes behind Miss Wright after the first round, and Clifford Ann Creed.

Miss Mann faltered Friday with a 78, while Miss Creed had a 75.

A group tied for fifth place at 152 included the leading amateur and new collegiate champion, Joyce Kazmierksi of Michigan State, who posted a 77.

Hazeltine's grainy greens were described by the disconsolate Miss Wright as "real heavy bladed grass on which spike marks made the ball wobble."

Set Annual 'Y' Tennis Instructions

The annual summer YMCA-sponsored tennis instructions will be held July 11 through Aug. 1, with sessions Monday, Wednesday and Friday at 5 and 6 p.m. Ten sessions in all will be staged, for boys and girls ages 11 through 17.

Instructions will be held at the old MacMurray College courts and at Nichols Park. One-hundred and twenty-three enrolled in the instructional course last summer.

Because of anticipated interest this summer, the YMCA is arranging for additional instructors, under the direction of JHS tennis coach Manny Velasco.

A charge of $2.50 will be required, payable in advance. Lessons are limited to the 11-17 group because of limited facilities. Applications, which will appear in this paper, must be in to the YMCA before July 7.

Jury Determines Jackson Guilty Of Robbery
James E. Jackson, 48, of Springfield, charged with robbery, was found guilty by a Morgan county circuit court jury after six hours of deliberation Friday.
The jury, who received the case at 10 a.m. spent until five o'clock Friday evening considering the evidence.
Jackson was charged with the robbery of Richard Cruzan of Jacksonville north of Meredosia on the morning of April 21, 1966.
Another man, William R. Flynn, 37, of Berlin, also charged in the warrant is presently being held in the custody of the Morgan county sheriff.
Defense attorney Larry J. Flynn, appointed by the court to defend Jackson, argued that the issue was one of mistaken identity on the part of the prosecution's witnesses.
Jackson testified he had been in New Berlin, attempting to find someone to repair a power saw on the morning that the robbery occurred.
Flynn called nine witnesses to corroborate Jackson's testimony, but none of the nine persons would say under oath that Jackson had been in New Berlin on April 21, although they did remember him in town trying to repair a power saw sometime in April or early May.
State's Attorney Charles J. Ryan called three witnesses, Cruzan, Alberta Cochran, a waitress at a Meredosia cafe, and Morgan County Deputy Sheriff Dean Colwell.
Services are scheduled at 2 p.m. Sunday at the Gainer Funeral Home. Burial will be in Walnut Ridge cemetery, Virginia.
Friends may call at the funeral home at any time.

Rule Greife Boy Died Accidentally Of Pistol Wound
Members of a Morgan county coroner's jury, composed of three women and three men, ruled Friday night that the death of a 15-year-old Jacksonville youth was accidental.
Coroner John B. Martin called the inquest into the death of Mark Greife, son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard A. Greife of 1109 West State street.
The youth was found dead on the floor of a bedroom in the family residence by his father on the evening of June 24. The boy died of a gunshot wound of his head.
Five witnesses were called by Martin to testify. The youth's parents also testified concerning the child's manner and attitudes throughout his life.
Mr. Greife told the jury his opinion of how the incident occurred. He said his son had a very limited knowledge of how a firearm operated.
He said that after a first shot was fired accidentally, the youth, holding the weapon close to his face, attempted to remove the clip, and the gun slipped in his hand and accidentally discharged into his head.
The jury ruled the youth died, "as a result of an accidentally self-inflicted gunshot wound in the head."
Members of the jury were Glen Hillmann, foreman; Howard Boatman, David L. Gilgore, Dorothy L. Morthole, Elizabeth Henderson and Shirley I. Jarrett.
